2 Officials Taken to Police Station; Can Morale be Sustained?

(Editorial)

THE CAPITAL TIMES believes that the time has come for Gov. Blaine to take some official notice of conditions that prevail in the state prohibition department.

This newspaper believes that conditions prevail there that warrant firm official action at the hands of the state executive.

* * * *

During the past year, two officials charged with the administration of the state prohibition law, have been taken to the Madison police station by Madison police officers.

Saturday night, one of the chief deputies of the department was taken to the police station on complaint of his wife and neighbors. He was brought to the station in an intoxicaed condition.

Inquiry at the state prohibition office this morning was to the effect that no action would be taken regarding the matter because the officer taken to the station "is one of the state's best prohibition officers."

* * * *

The Capital Times is interested in this situation from other angles than law enforcement alone. This newspaper is against any condition that will bring injury to the progressive movement in Wisconsin. Gov. Blaine possesses that same interest and is jealous of the good name of the movement in this state.

Good citizens generally and progressives in particular cannot endorse conditions that now prevail in the department. The governor himself knows that there has been a strong undercurrent of criticism against conditions there.

When officials standing high in the department are taken to the Madison police department and the news leaks out to the public, demoralization in the enforcement of law is bound to ensue. Morale cannot exist in the department when the law is broken by the very ones chosen to enforce it.

The demoralization will extend far beyond the department. Local police officials throughout the state cannot be expected to take any active part in wiping out the moonshine evil when they hear of state prohibition officials being taken up by local police officers.

Such incidents cause respect for the law to diminish. Contempt takes the place of respect. This is where the danger to the progressive movement arises. The progressive movement has always been proud of its clean administration of the past two decades. There has been but little of dishonesty or bribery or graft or scandal. That heritage is one of the biggest assets of the movement. It must not be destroyed at a time when the progressives have such a golden opportunity as the present to win further confidence at the hands of the people.

The progressive movement can easily withstand the selfish attacks of the Anti-Saloon league. The progressive movement, however, cannot afford to make a mockery of any law that has been placed on the statute books in a constitutional and orderly way. The progressive leaders should never knowingly permit scandal to stain its fine record of the past.

* * * *

Gov. Blaine has, in the past, acted firmly on occasions when the welfare of the progressive movement has been threatened. We believe that he will take the present situation in hand and demand a new deal in the state prohibition department.

Blaine Attends Conference Of Progressives

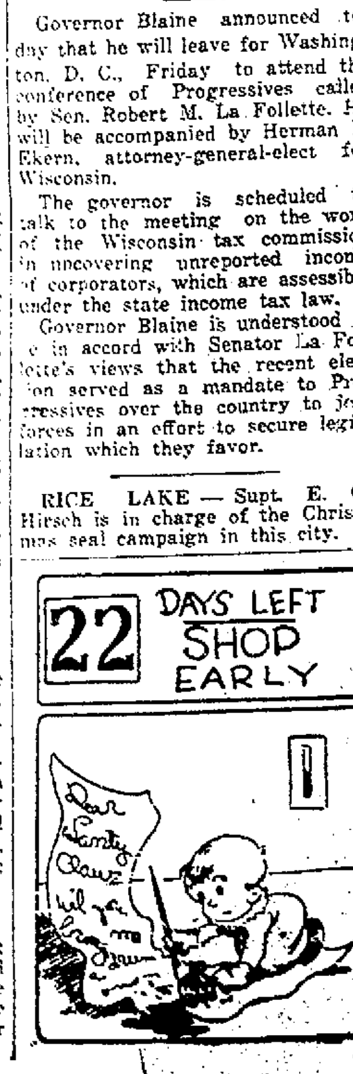

Will Leave for Washington Friday; Acts on Call of LaFollette

Governor Blaine announced today that he will leave for Washington, D. C., Friday to attend the conference of Progressives called by Sen. Robert M. La Follette. He will be accompanied by Herman L. Ekern, attorney-general-elect for Wisconsin.

The governor is scheduled to talk to the meeting on the work of the Wisconsin tax commission in uncovering unreported income of corporators, which are assessible under the state income tax law.

Governor Blaine is understood to be in accord with Senator La Follette's views that the recent election served as a mandate to Progressives over the country to join forces in an effort to secure legislation which they favor.

State Budget Up at Session Here Today

Blaine Goes Into Conference With Board of Public Affairs

The state board of public affairs went into executive session with Governor Blaine today to consider and revise financial budgets submitted to it by state departments and institutions. A trimming down of the budget requests, totalling approximately $53,000,000 for the coming biennium, is looked for by board members.

Increased appropriations of nearly $9,000,000 are asked by the state departments to carry on their work for the coming two year period. The governor before budget estimates were drawn up, asked that each division of the state government hold its requests as nearly as possible to the expenditures during the past biennium.

Threads Are Tangled In Tiernan Case

Reconciliation Hope Fades as "Bride of Day" Asks Recognition

(By the Associated Press)

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—With the threads of the domestic affairs of Prof. and Mrs. J. P. Tiernan becoming more tangled by many new developments since the start of the Tiernan-Poulin paternity case, the next move of the principals toward a restoration of harmony in the household was being watched with intrest today.

Despite the fact that Prof. Tiernan announced last night that the reconciliation with his first wife was moving along satisfactorily, a dispatch from Marshalltown, Ia., quoted Mrs. Blanche Brimmer Tiernan, the professor's "bride of a day," as saying that she was the latter's wife and was going to live with him. She said she expected Tiernan to arrive at the Iowa city Wednesday.

Whether the professor will carry out his intention of dismissing the divorce petition against the first Mrs. Tiernan and have the appeal of the paternity case against Harry Poulin dismissed, or whether he will take action to have his marriage to the second Mrs. Tiernan pronounced legal are steps that remain to be determined by future developments.

HANSELL, Ia.—Mrs. Charles H. Hawn, mother of Mrs. Blanche Hawn Rash Brimmer, announced that her daughter legally was entitled to wed Prof. J. P. Tiernan in their Crown Point, Ind., ceremony last Saturday.

It is "Mrs. Blanche Tiernan," definitely, said Mrs. Hawn, and Prof. Tiernan and Mrs. Augusta Tiernan must settle their legal status in Indiana.

Violations Charged By Tiger

Clemenceau in Chicago Declares Germans Broke 50 Treaty Terms

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Georges Clemenceau, war-time premier of France, today was preparing a broadside which he hopes will silence critics who have accused him of being an alarmist in declaring that Germany was preparing for a new war and discount the German government denial of his claims.

He declared that he was listing, from official documents in his possession, "50 flagrant violations by the Germans of the peace treaty in the matter of war preparations." They were discovered by the interallied commission, he said.

A few of the most flagrant instances will find their way into the address he is to deliver late this afternoon in the Auditorium.

The Tiger spent the forenoon in a bedroom of the Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore Drive, working on his list and on his address.

Wearing his little gray cocked hat and gray wrapper, he sat with a pot of cold tea beside a window overlooking Lake Michigan.

He recited his wonder and admiration for Chicago that has grown up since his last visit more than 57 years ago and was continually referring to the city as his "twin" because, as he said, he was born the same year that Chicago was changed from a fort to a city.

Mrs. Helm gave her age as 37 and her husband's as 28. They have no children.

Extension of Nakoma Mail Route is Asked

Extension of rural route No. 6 has been asked of the post office department by Postmaster W. A. Devine. Formerly the residents of Nakoma were forced to place their mail boxes at the bus station on the Verona road forcing some to walk over a mile to procure their mail.

A petition was submitted to Mr. Devine asking that the route be extended to the W. Gilbert farm at the end of the road running westward from the station but this could not be done because of the few residents residing beyond the Piper corner. Route six has been extended to this point from which the carrier will circle through Nakoma and again strike the Verona road.

Agricultural Colleges Are Blind to Farmers Real Needs Says Lieut. Gov. Geo. Comings

The College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin in common with other agricultural colleges is blind to the needs of the farmer and not of material assistance to him in his times of stress, Lieut. Gov. George F. Comings declared in a statement today.

George F. Comings

He said that next week he will outline definite constructive measures which he believes will work to relieve the agricultural interests of Wisconsin. These measures will be brought before the 1923 session of the legislature.

The statement follows:

"The farmers are bankrupt, 'tenants at will' to the banks and the investment public that lent them money. This is an actual situation that confronts the farming communities of the country and is pointed out by George H. Stevenson, who has been an actual farmer, in the farm loan business for private interests, and one of the directors of one of the twelve regional farm loan banks.

He points out that the farming industry has been on the downgrade for many years and all the various plans to help the farmer are either theoretical or so bound up with red tape and bureaucratic control that they are ineffective.

"The remedy that seems to be proposed is opportunity for the farmer to borrow more money, which, instead of leading him to the promised land, leads him to the rocks. Other competent observers have also denounced in scathing terms many of the proposals to help the farmers by people who do not understand the fundamental needs of the farmer. This is particularly true of our agricultural ticularly. In spite of all the machinery of learning and of research the agricultural colleges in Wisconsin and elsewhere have been of no material assistance. How blind they are is indicated by the fact that they have insisted on more production even when the farmers' product was rotting on the ground because it could not be moved.

"The fundamental need of the farmer is not more production or more facilities for borrowing money which must be paid back, but fair prices for that which he produces and upon that depends the soundness of the agricultural situation which is essential for a sound national economy. Whether or not the farmer will secure a fair price for his produce will depend to a considerable degree on the increased earning capacity of the masses of the people, in spite of Dean Davenport's propaganda article to the contrary in a recent number of the Saturday Evening Post. There is no use in talking about improving the rural situation until these fair prices to the farmer are achieved, and that will depend, as already pointed out, on the capacity of the masses of the people of the county to pay for the necessaries of life.

"With all the money invested in our agricultural colleges, with all the research of our agricultural experiment stations, the farmer has not been helped in his fundamental need, but has been forced into a situation that has practically reduced him to serfdom in his efforts to increase production. It has been well pointed out that 'the net result of this policy, applied to American agriculture, is that our farming classes have finally been reduced to a position of serfdom. I use this word advisedly—serfs to purchasers of farm loan bonds, to the holders of the mortgages, namely, the insurance companies and private investors, and to the banks and individuals who have loaned them money on short-time credit. A sad commentary on our agricultural leadership is that today the only solution they have to offer is a pledge for legislation which will make more money available for the farmer, a companion piece to the Federal Farm Loan system, when, as a matter of fact, the farmer has already poured so much borrowed money down the 'rathole' that he is actually, and in fact, bankrupt as a class.

"There are two courses to pursue and who will question for a minute that the course to be taken by us is the second?

"'The first, and by far the most humiliating course for all concerned,' says Mr. Stevenson, 'and I agree with him heartily, 'is to continue along the present line, which will lead soon to the syndicated method of farm operation, where the present farm loan bondholders and mortgage holders, and loaners of short-time credit shall have title in fee simple to the farms, pooling their interests in syndicate operations of the land itself.

"'The second course calls for 'about face,' under a dynamic, constructive leadership, capable of overriding the red tape, that circuitous and never-ending trail of the bureaucratic government, striking straight for agriculture as the basic national industry, letting the chips fall where they will. This course will test the spirit of both rural and urban people.'

"The trouble with a great deal of our University Schools of Agriculture is that they tend to develop the agriculturist instead of the farmer. They tend to look at the main business of farming as the production of more produce, they have not been until quite recently, and then from pressure on the outside, concerned about the marketing and distribution of agricultural products. They fail to see the economics that they are concerned in is not a mere agricultural economics but a national economics involving all the people of the country. It is another case of the specialization of the University where each kind of knowledge is kept in a hot-house of its own and not related to all the other knowledge which would help interpret it and make it serve human ends.

"Mr. Stevenson says it is a case of 'too much' specialist and not enough constructive practical nation-wide vision. Or, putting the thing even more concretely, Mr. Stevenson says: 'Today, however, the county agent, instead of being looked upon as the emissary of the farmer, has become, because of pressure of his superiors, primarily the emissary of a multiplicity of scientific and semi-scientific bureaus desiring to exploit the results of their research, and ofttimes their theories, at the expense of the farmer.'

"Here is a challenge for a new conception of the agricultural college and a new quality of leadership. When shall we get it?"

Withdraw Minister At Athens

Action Follows Execution of 6 Former Greek Cabinet Members

BULLETN

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—It was stated in official circles this afternoon that the immediate withdrawal of the British minister at Athens will result from the executions.

(By the Associated Press)

ATHENS—The six former cabinet officers and army officials convicted of high treason in connection with Greek military disaster in Asia Minor were executed today.

The execution of the condemned men was by shooting. The men executed were: Former Premiers Gounaris, Protopapadakis and Stratos; M. Theotokis, former war minister, M. Baltazzis, holder of portfolios in several former cabinets and General Hadjanestis commander of Greek forces at the time of the Asia Minor military disaster.

The trial of the men began on Nov. 13. The court martial was instituted by a decree of the revolutionary committee after an investigation by a special committee of inquiry had resulted in a report charging treason.

May Break off Relations.
(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—There is the strongest possibility that Great Britain will break off diplomatic relations with Greece if the death sentences imposed on former Greek cabinet officers are carried out, it was stated in official circles today.

The precedent of such action by the British, it was suggested, would probably be the break in diplomatic relations with Serbia in 1903, as a result of the murder of the Serbian majesties by revolutionaries.

It was pointed out, however, that the sentence given the former Greek ministers have not yet been carried out and that there still was hope that the Greeks would not take such extreme action.

Early in the trial the British government made representations against possible imposition of the death sentence. London dispatches said the British action had been generally resented in Athens and that the recent fall of the Zaimis ministry could be traced directly to the British stand.

All But Two Escaped Convicts are Caught

MARQUETTE, Mich.—The net surrounding the escaped prisoners of Marquette state prison here, tightened this morning with the arrest of Lewis Berkowitz, a paroled convict sentenced from Wayne county in 1817 on a charge of burglary, who was caught in the act of entering a hardware store here to obtain, it is alleged by prison officials, arms and ammunition to aid the two convicts still at large. Seven more prisoners were captured by the prison guards last night when officers came upon three men walking down the road, near here, and without a struggle arrested them. Four more were arrested at Houghton, Mich., where they had gone via an automobile which they are said to have stolen from a resident here. All men were unarmed and surrendered. Two convicts, four of whom are lifers, are still at large. Four more convicts were captured at 11:30 this morning by Warden Corgan and three guards who answered a call from two stone cutters, working in a quarry, who reported they had seen a number of men lounging around a "moonshiner's camp."

Give Thanks to God is Plea of Mayor Kittleson

The following proclamation was today issued by Mayor I. M. Kittleson:

Thursday of this week is Thanksgiving day, established by law as a legal holiday and designated as a day to be devoted especially to giving thanks to Almighty God for the blessings we have been permitted to enjoy here on earth.

Thankfulness is a virtue that should be cultivated and instilled in the minds and hearts of all.

The young, especially, should be taught to be thankful for what they have and are permitted to enjoy regardless of what others seem to have and enjoy.

To be truly thankful, we must be happy—and to be happy, we must not harbor envy, hate, and malice in our hearts.

We, in this community, have much to be thankful for, health, peace, prosperity and many other blessings. As a people, I know we are not ungrateful.

Therefore, as mayor of Madison, I hereby proclaim Thursday, Nov. 30, as Thanksgiving day and urge and recommend that business be suspended to give all opportunity to attend their usual place of worship and there, like their Pilgrim Fathers before them, give thanks to God from whom all blessings flow.

119 G.O.P. In Legislature; 13 Socialists

Lone Democrat is Member; Varied Interests are Represented

An analysis of the political complexion of the 1923 legislature, completed today by Elmer S. Hall, secretary of state, shows that 119 members class themselves as republicans, one as a democrat, and 13 as socialists. This shows an increase in the socialist delegation to the legislature with a falling off in the number of democrats.

The senate has 30 republicans in its membership and three socialists, with no democrats. In the last session there were two democrats and five socialists in the upper house. The assembly has 89 republicans, one democrat and 10 socialists, all the socialist members coming from Milwaukee. Five socialists and two democrats served in the lower house during the 1921 session.

Out of the membership of 100 in the lower house, 65 are definitely affiliated with the La Follette-Blaine faction of the republican party, while in the senate 17 out of the 33 members have a like affiliation, giving the governor a clear majority in both houses. The socialists in the past voted with the La Follette faction on practically all measures.

Practically all interests of the state are represented. The upper house has in its membership six farmers, eight lawyers, two salesmen, four bankers, one publisher, one editor, one municipal contractor, two manufacturers, two lumbermen, two physicians, two real estate dealers, one wholesale grocer, an agent and an insurance man.

Fifty-two farmer members of the assembly give that class control of the lower house, which in addition has nine lawyer members, three machinists, a locomotive engineer, three other engineers, a fish dealer, a taxi-driver, one florist, a journalist, two bankers, one iron dealer a laundryman, a printer, a cigarmaker, a painter, two real estate men, an insurance agent, an assessor of incomes, and a secretary of a county manufacturers' association.

A. H. Dahl Says Old Sultan Isn't Bad Sort; Showed His Hospitality To Americans

Mohammed VI, sultan of Turkey, who fled his throne, has at least one friend. He is Andrew H. Dahl, a former resident of Madison former state treasurer of Wisconsin, and now owner of the Dahl garage at Kenosha, who recently related how on a recent trip to Europe he and his wife, as members of a party of Americans, were feted by the sultan at the palace in Constantinople.

"I don't know anything about his politics," said Mr. Dahl, "but you can say for me that the sultan knows how to entertain. He was the only ruler in Europe who paid enough attention to our party to open the palace doors to us. He may be a bold, bad Turk but as a host he is a real gentleman.

"Our party arrived in Constantinople aboard the George Washington Mar. 10. It was Friday, the day on which the sultan always goes to the mosque in state to pray for his people. We found, much to our delight, that before starting his preparations to go to the Mosque the sultan had left word that the doors of the palace should be opened to the Americans and that they should be permitted to enter the courts and wander through them at will. While we waited, servants passed around cigarettes—long ones such as the sultan himself smoked—and served Turkish coffee and sandwiches."

Mr. Dahl admitted that he had smoked but one of the cigarettes. He added that he and his wife had taken three of them as souvenirs. While they were at the palace they were informed that Mohammed VI was about to leave the palace for the mosque.

"Along the street leading from the palace to the mosque there were lines of Turkish guards with bayonets drawn," said Mr. Dahl. "I darted along the court to a place that seemed least guarded. The sultan's carriage was preceded with a guard of soldiers. He rode in an open carriage drawn by four coal black horses. As he passed along the street he smiled at all, turning especially to recognize the Americans.

Heat Flashes, Chills or Dizzy Spells?

This is of Vital Interest to Mothers and Women of Middle Age.

Eau Claire, Wis.—"During expectancy my health had so completely failed that I was confined to my bed, could not do anything. I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The first bottle gave me wonderful relief and by the time I had taken four bottles I had completely regained my health and strength. I had practically no suffering and had a wonderfully healthy and strong baby. Later on, at the critical time of life, I began to suffer with heat flashes and chills, also dizzy spells. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gave me immediate relief and I came through that trying time without any more trouble. I have since enjoyed perfect health."—Mrs. J. B. Myers, 216 9th Ave.

A men's store's message to the women of Madison

It's about Christmas—and the men and boys of your family—written to save you a lot of time and worry.

YOU know how hard it is to choose gifts for men and boys. Books, jewelry, fancy cigarette cases and other gew gaws somehow don't seem to "fill the bill" with "regular fellows."

The problem finally resolves itself into "something to wear." That's what men really appreciate—things they want but seldom buy—or have to buy later.

But that "something to wear" must be good and in good taste. The natural place to find it is in a men's store—the store that most of the well dressed men of this community patronize.

You'll find here not only the things to wear which men want, but the ready, helpful, understanding service of young men who delight in "talking over" your individual gift problems with you.

We'd suggest that you come in early and make your selections before the rush begins. A small deposit will hold any gift until you want it.

"The Nabors" Name Chosen For New Club

East Side Men Select Name For Society; Meet Mondays

"The Nabors" was adopted as the name of an organization of east side professional and business men at a dinner in the Plymouth Congregational church last evening. The object and aim of the organization is to bring men together for the purpose of social unity, civic betterment, and community progress.

Thomas J. Rudesill is president of the new order; Prof. T. H. East, vice president; and John W. Sylander, secretary and treasurer.

In explanation Prof. East said: "Our main idea is to have a club that is really constructive. We are interested, primarily, in our own section of Madison, the east side, but that interest should not exclude other districts. It should extend to the entire city, the state, and the nation. Our club is not to be essentially a religious organ and we will welcome any one who is interested in the things that we are working for. They must however abide by the constitution of the club. The organization is not a business men's club, neither is it a body of professional men, but is made up of both."

The new order will meet in the Plymouth church every second and fourth Monday of each month, at 6:30.

Registration of applicants will be continued today in Lathrop hall during the tryouts, which will be in Lathrop parlors from 4:30 to 6 o'clock and will continue tomorrow.

"All club members who wish to try out for the play must register during the period Tuesday," said Olivia Fentress yesterday.

Special Piece To Be Offered At Follies

"Winter Moon" is the name of the original song which will be introduced as the Haresfoot Follies foxtrot, at the Fifth Annual Follies dance next Saturday night in Lathrop hall.

The number has been written by Cecil Brodt '23, and Willard Sumner '23, and will be heard the first time at the follies Saturday.

The Haresfoot quartet, featuring Martin Below '24, will introduce the number during the vodvil occurring at intermission time.

Dave Chudnow '25, and his 10-piece orchestra, with Bud Buell '23, and Bob Falley '26, Nate Grabin '23, and Eddie Kehl are rehearsing daily to prepare specialties for the dance, and will feature "Winter Moon" during the evening.

Mrs. Park Has Big Crowd At Meeting Here

"Women Succeed Through Persistence," Says Leader

"Women have been too ready to [illegible] the best of things instead of [illegible] better," said Mrs. [illegible] Wood Park, president of the National League of Women Voters, [illegible] an audience of 300 [illegible] in the dining [illegible] Woman's building, 240 [illegible] Twenty-six women's [illegible] were represented.

[illegible] one of the weak[illegible] women in political life— [illegible] abilities," she con[illegible] average woman is [illegible] interested in good gov[illegible] she often fails to [illegible] she must take an ac[illegible] in her district politics at [illegible] well as in the general the[illegible] good management.

[illegible] women do have one excel[illegible] qualification for political life, [illegible] is persistence—the ability [illegible] keep everlastingly at the thing [illegible] want until they get it. They [illegible] learned that all jobs cannot [illegible] accomplished with a single en[illegible] deavor probably from their ex[illegible] perience in washing dishes."

Another of women's assets for [illegible] positions, according to [illegible] Park, is their ability to make [illegible] money go a long way and their [illegible] vigilance in watching over funds [illegible] entrusted to their care. The small [illegible] things which men do not consider [illegible] worth bothering about amount to [illegible] tremendous aggregate waste, the [illegible] speaker declared. She cited an ex[illegible] ample of a woman county treas[illegible] urer who was daring enough to [illegible] refuse to light a trip, costing be[illegible] tween $8,000 and $9,000 for some [illegible] the officials to go to eastern [illegible] cities and "get prices" on furniture [illegible] for the county jail.

Mrs. Park also emphasized that women are bringing into public affairs a conception of public serv[illegible] where there is giving as well as getting. In the first part of her talk she told her audience of some of the difficulties in getting bills brought to a vote in Washington. She spoke of the work of the Women's Joint Congressional com[illegible] mittee, of which she is chairman, [illegible] told some very amusing inci[illegible] dents of technicalities to be over[illegible] come.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard, region[illegible] director for the league from Winnetka, Ill., spoke on the Insti[illegible] tute of Politics held last summer [illegible] Williamstown and told briefly [illegible] some of its round table discus[illegible] sions in the interest of world [illegible] peace. She announced that Miss Julia Lathrop who spoke recently [illegible] Madison for the conference of social workers has accepted the nomination for state president of the Illinois League of Women Voters.

Dr. Elizabeth Woods, chairman of the child welfare committee for [illegible] Wisconsin league gave a brief report of the work being done.

INDIGESTION !!! STOMACH UPSET, ATE TOO MUCH

Instantly! Stop Gas, Sourness, Heartburn, Stomach Misery

Even a cross, feverish, bilious, or constipated child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Adv.

Released Prisoner not Entitled to Compensation

A man who has been unlawfully imprisoned, but released through other means than by pardon of the governor, has not served a "term" within the meaning of the statutes and is not entitled to state compensation, W. W. Gilman, assistant attorney general, told Governor Blaine today in an official opinion. He held that Norris J. Sledge of Milwaukee, who according to his petition to the governor, served four months in the state prison on a charge which the court later determined to be unfounded, could not collect from the state for unlawful imprisonment.

Require More Quarters For Press Delegates

C. I. P. A. Convention Head Asks Aid in Finding Rooms Here

A plea for more rooms for delegates to the C. I. P. A. convention this weekend was made yesterday by Jerome Bjerke '25, chairman of the convention preparations.

"Unless the fraternities and sororities open their houses wider to the delegates, one of the primary purposes of the convention, to create an interest in the university throughout the country, will be defeated", Prof. E. M. Johnson of the course in journalism, asserted yesterday.

"Delegates from all sections of the country including New Mexico, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Maine will come to Madison this week, for the first time will see the University of Wisconsin, and will carry back the impression it made upon them. A wire from Rochester, N. Y. received yesterday announced that two will come from there."

"Only 250 of the 650 registered delegates had been provided for up to yesterday afternoon. If the fraternities and sororities will not take in more high school editors, the Madison high school pupils will have to be asked to help provide places for the delegates of the convention called by the university," committee chairmen declared.

"The delegates will not depend upon fraternal organizations for entertainment. They will be busy with convention affairs, banquets, and dances. Only one-third of the delegates have been provided for and a greater effort must be made by all organizations in order that the university's burden will not have to be carried by the Madison high schools," Bertha M. Elbel '24, woman's chairman of the housing committee, said.

More than half of the delegates will arrive Thursday night and the housing committee has asked that as many rooms as possible be opened that night as well as Friday.

All organizations that will increase the number they have agreed to take and all who will open their houses Thursdya night have been asked to inform the housing committee chairman at South hall.

AMERICAN VIM MAKES UP FOR LACK OF POLISH

Hiking Best Way to Travel, Say Co-eds

Parlor cars, Pullmans, and all the conveniences of travel may be all right for some, but it is too effeminate for two co-eds who made the trip to Chicago Saturday by the simple process of walking and catching a ride whenever the opportunity presented itself.

Starting out early Friday morning the girls took the state trunk highway for Milwaukee. They had not gone far when the first autoist offered them a lift, and the trip to Milwaukee was accomplished speedily.

They did not lose any time in getting their way, and were soon going along the lake shore toward the Midway by the same means of conveyance. They reached Chicago about dark and spent the night with friends. Saturday morning they succumbed to the feminine instincts and went shopping in the loop.

They watched the game along with some 10,000 other Badger rooters and returned to their friend's home to borrow some clothes and take in a theater performance.

Starting out early Sunday morning, they hit the sawdust trail in an Evanston church and then hit the macadam for Milwaukee again. They made good time on the return trip and arrived in Madison about 8 o'clock Sunday night.

"A wonderful trip and a wonderful game," they said. "If you want to enjoy a football game that is the way to do it."

Gage to Leave Tomorrow For Toronto Convention

Leslie Gage '23, president of the Union board, starts tomorrow for Toronto, where he will attend a convention of unions from 20 colleges and universities December 1 and 2.

A detailed study of the Hart Union building at Toronto, the largest and most complete union in America, will be one of the interesting phases of the convention.

Because the plans for Wisconsin's proposed Memorial Union building are being drawn up, Gage will examine the features of the Hart union building which would be of value here.

"The Toronto union has planned all kinds of entertainments for us, from afternoon tea to a complete tour through their elaborate Union building" Gage said last night.

Student Court Will Try Scalping Suspects Here

The third man held on scalping charges pleaded not guilty. He will be arraigned before the court December 8.

MINERS, AT MASS, SAFE IN MINE DISASTER, RESCUE VICTIMS

Miners and police ready to render first aid to victims as they were brought from shaft.

The number of miners working in the Reilly mine at Spangler, Pa., when a explosion killed eighty and injured thirty-two, was lessened considerably by a Catholic mission which held mass that morning near the mine. Many miners who normally are in that mine at that hour were attending mass. When the explosion occurred they rushed to the mine and aided in the rescue.

FREEDOM OF THE "SEES" GRANTED AGAIN BY FLORIDA MAYOR

Typical group of feminine bathers enjoying merry-go-round ride on St. Petersburg beach.

"I stand where I did last year on bathing beach censorship," declared Mayor Frank Pulver of St. Petersburg, Fla., when asked recently if there would be any censorship rules laid down this year. When summer loving tourists flocked to "St. Pete" last winter the Purity league in the Sunshine City demanded that the millionaire mayor make the bathers dress "modestly" to save the youths and the morals of the nation. Mayor Pulver, after personally inspecting the suits worn by the fair sex on the sand, gave the scanty suits his O. K. and said: "There must be something wrong with those who see anything indecent in clothes which give the girls and women freedom of movement and thereby aid in promoting the health of the wearers."

These Stills from the movie are his latest pictures.

Walska now is in Europe preparing for the proposed tour. Mme. Meluis is in the United States.

BETTER TREATMENT FOR SCRUB COW URGED BY LEADING DAIRY EXPERTS

A plea for the average cow, the ordinary, sad-eyed bovine seen on most farms, is being made by various farm organizations. In the past chief attention has been given the aristocratic pure-breds, the glossy, manicured, pedigreed beauties one sees at the great expositions and fairs. It has become increasingly apparent that a modicum of such care might be vouchsafed the scrub, to the greater comfort of the cow, greater profit to the farmer, and to the purity of the milk.

Dairy experts point out that the season is at hand when cows will be confined for months in sheds or barns. In the pastures cows keep themselves clean. When they are confined to barns, cleanliness must be served to them. Too often they are left with unclean bedding, with flanks and udders matted with the dirt they could not escape.

"Clean bedding should be provided daily," says a bulletin on the subject. "Flanks and udders should be clipped. Once a month is often enough. When this is done a wet cloth run over the clipped surface removes all dirt, and purity of the milk is conserved. And it makes for a happier, healthier cow. All animals, even pigs, appreciate cleanliness, and pay for it in increased production. Clippers are cheap, they last a life-time, and there is small excuse for any farmer, even though he has but two or three cows, to neglect this humane and economical service."

WEST INDIES' CRUISES FOR WINTER TOURISTS

A CUBAN CONTRAST: STATELY PALMS AND SQUALID HUTS

TOURISTS PASSING THROUGH PANAMA CANAL

American have developed such an appetite for travel that it requires an all the year round menu to satisfy them. Thousands of those who spent the hot months among the cool mountains and woodland resorts of the north lands, are now planning mid-winter jaunts. California and the Gulf States still prove a strong magnet, but winter cruises in warm waters grow yearly more popular.

Round-the-world and Mediterranean tours appeal to those who have plenty of money and idle hours. For those who cannot get away for more than a month and who do not wish to incur heavy expense, the West Indies' cruise offers a happy solution.

Several lines of steamships maintain regular runs between New York and these southern points, but it was left for the Canadian Pacific to inaugurate cruises de luxe on special ships over this course. Two such cruises were made in January and February last winter. They proved so successful and elicited so many demands for future cruises that the Canadian Pacific has scheduled two more for the coming winter.

The "Empress of Britain" will again be taken off her trans-Atlantic run for this service. She is the largest ship on the West Indies' route, having registered tonnage of 15,857 tons and is an oil-burner. A swimming tank on deck adds to the gayety and enjoyment of the voyage.

On the second day after leaving New York, passengers begin to lay aside their furs and heavy wraps, in another day they are donning summer apparel. Four days voyaging over ever bluer seas lands them at Havana, rich in historical lore and lure, Spanish beauties and waving palms. This is the first port of call and is of thirty-nine hours' duration allowing many excursions into Havana's fascinating environs.

These cruises consume a month and allow visits at Havana, Jamaica, Panama, Venezuela, Trinidad, Barbadoes, Martinique, Porto Rico, Nassau and Bermuda or Bahamas.

Autowash Co. Burns; Save Cars

$5,000 Blaze Destroys West Side Building; Origin Mystery

The frame building at W. Washington ave. and S. Bedford st., housing the Autowash Co. and the Walford garage, was practically destroyed by fire this morning, causing damage estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000. The second floor of the structure was used by the Kennedy Dairy Co. for storage purposes, and a large number of ice cream containers and other supplies were destroyed by the flames.

The fire, it is believed, started in between the ceiling and the upper floor, and spread through the partition before breaking out. The first flames were discovered by Charles Young, colored, proprietor of the Autowash Co.

He said he had considerable trouble in getting a telephone operator to connect him with the fire station, and when he succeeded in giving the alarm, it was too late to save the building.

For a time the residence of Mrs. Mary Emerson, 15 S. Bedford st., was threatened by the flames.

The building was valued at about $2,000, it was said. Property destroyed would easily bring the loss up to $4,000 or $5,000. Several automobiles stored at the Autowash Co. were removed when the fire was discovered.

French Papers Omit Scandal, Says Longuet

Socialist Leader Declares Paris Concerned With Greater Affairs

French newspapers are concerned with other matters than the matrimonial escapades of unimportant individuals, according to Jean Longuet, editor of "Le Populaire" of Paris, who spoke in Music hall last night.

"Here you see a great black headline saying that a man has left his first wife to go to his second, just as if it were a great national catastrophe," he said. "We do not even put it in the paper if a man dies."

Though the speaker is a leader of the French socialists, he refrained from political discussion in this speech and confined his talk to a survey of French journals.

"Editorials are of prime importance in the papers of Paris, which are the papers of all France, and many of them give the main display to the editorial of the day, according to M. Longuet.

The few French papers that emphasize news are controlled by financial interests and suppress much news, he said. He remarked on the fact that keen competition among American newspapers forces the publication of many stories which would not be printed in France.

M. Longuet lauded the American idea of journalistic education, citing the remark of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm that editors are the only recognized leaders who do not have to take some kind of test.

"It will take young women and young men who have studied and obtained a certain preparation, a moral preparation to use conscientiously the tremendous power of the press," he affirmed.

"Everywhere I go outside of France and ask for a French paper, I get Le Figaro, a paper which hardly anyone reads in Paris," the speaker said, declaring that the paper has a larger foreign than domestic circulation. Its theatrical news is its chief attraction, he said.

Of the Parisian papers, there are four in Paris with a subscription of 500,000 and over. These are Le Petit Parisienne, Le Journal, Le Matin, and Le Petit Journal.

Papers Quite Different

"Our Sunday papers are not the veritable encyclopedia that yours are. Your press is above all the press of information," the speaker said in a comparison of the papers of the two countries.

Editorial writing and comment is the characteristic of French journalism, it was brought out. The Paris paper Le Tempe, with a subscription list of 60,000, has more editorials than news content on its front page.

L'Ere Nouvelle, a republican progressive paper edited by the former cabinet member, Mr. Caillou, and L'Humanite of the socialist Jean Jaures who refused to support the Russian socialists at Moscow, thus causing a split in the party are important papers of the more daical type. The unions of Paris support "Le Peuple". Two socialist papers are printed in the city of Strassbourg in Alsace.

Cold Winter

"Billy" Dunn off For West, Fears Chilly Season

W. G. "Pickerel Billy" Dunn, 1116 E. Johnson st., leaves Tuesday for Los Angeles where he will spend the winter with his son, Carl Dunn. Veteran fisherman and nature lover, Mr. Dunn stated today that it is his belief that the winter will be cold, but with no great amount of snow.

Oak trees are barren this fall he points out as one reason for his belief. The squirrels are not making an extensive preparations, indicating that the ground will not be covered with snow continuously. He expects the coldest weather in December and January.

RULES

1. Any boy or girl up to the age of five years whose parents reside in Dane county is eligible to enter the contest.
2. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of photographs submitted to The Baby Contest Editor of The Capital Times. Photographs must be identified with the name and age of the baby and the name and address of the parents.

4. The Capital Times reserves the right to publish any picture submitted in this contest.
5. The contest will close at midnight on Dec. 16 and any picture mailed after that date will not be eligible.

Names of prize winners will be published during the following week.

Stoughton and other towns in Dane county as well as Madison are sending in their quota of contestants in The Capital Times' effort to find the prettiest baby in the county.

These five entries were among the scores received yesterday, and every mail is bringing in fresh crops of pretty infants, while dozens of parents are calling in person at The Capital Times office with photographs.

In response to many anxious inquiries, the Baby Contest Editor wishes to inform all parents that the photographs will be returned. After the contest ends on Dec. 16 and after the judges have had time to view all of them in reaching their decision, the pictures will be returned through the mails to the parents.

Yesterday several parents offered to submit their babies in person. But awards will be made only on the basis of photographs, to facilitate the work of the judges.

How Did Longuet, Socialist, Slip by the Watchdog at the University, Asks Cardinal

(An Editorial in the Daily Cardinal)

WE are rather puzzled and are trying to figure out whether a bloodless revolution has occurred in the Star chamber of Bascom hall. M. Jean Longuet, grandson of Karl Marx, editor of an extremely left-handed Paris newspaper, leader of the French socialists, was permitted to speak last night in Music hall.

No veto came from the president of this great liberal university. The platform denied Villard, Nearing, and Mrs. O'Hare was open to the French radical.

So far as we have been able to find out, he was not even required to sign Upton Sinclair's declaration of pure intent.

And not even the American Legion protested.

What does it mean? Does it mean that the bronze tablet on Bascom hall may be shined up?

Does it mean that the powers that we are permitting the eminently reespectable committee on lectures (which so delightfully advertised the speaker as "former congressman" from Paris) to undertake a program of winnowing and sifting?

We wish we could say we believed it, but we are not so quick to draw conclusions. We imagine that it is but another bit of converse evidence that a prophet, true or false, is without honor in his own country.

We doubt whether the president of the First National bank of Oshkosh or even the commander of the American Legion knows who M. Longuet is and how dangerous are his affiliations. He hasn't been branded as a Bolshevist in the American newspapers. Mr. Burleson had no chance to suppress his newspaper.

It was safe to let him speak; we say this on the assumption that the faculty censors knew whom they were allowing to speak.

But no one need get excited anyway.

A select group of campus intellectuals who knew whom they were to hear were on hand, but we fear that they were disappointed.

M. Longuet was the epitome of discretion. His speech was in the steel blue words of the scientific student, unmitigated by red. For the most part it was a cold catalogue of French newspapers.

He did not trample on the American flag or even on the tricolor. Indeed, neither was within reach.

He confined his vituperation to the French monarchists, that class so hateful to all democratic, liberty-loving, socialist-imprisoning Americans.

Once, indeed, he indicated that he would have liked to have had the recent international butchery end sooner, but he stopped and changed the subject so quickly that no one had a chance to shout "Bolshevist."

Yes, the intellectuals were disappointed; and the business manager of the university need not yet buy brass polish for the traditional tablet.

But if the Social Science club ever again wants to use a university platform, we suggest that it might get the faculty committee on lectures and convocations to sponsor its speaker.

Girl Prefers Jail to Fine

Miss Birdie M. Case.

EAGLE ROCK, Calif.—"I think I'll go to jail. I have nothing to occupy my time and I've always wanted to see Clara Phillips and Madalyn Obenchain."

Judge Cruzan put on his most frigid judicial scowl. His dignity and the dignity of the court was ruffled.

Before him, smiling guilelessly, stood a pretty slip of a girl, decidedly pretty, thought the judge in spite of his rising ire. Nonchalantly she snapped her fingers right in his judicial face.

The few spectators giggled but ever so silently because Judge Cruzan was not in the habit of being "pooh-poohed."

"Young lady," the court repeated, "you've been convicted of a compound fracture of the speed laws and I sentence you to pay a $15 fine or go to jail for 15 days."

But the snapping fingers continued to snap. The girl, Miss Birdie M. Chase, daughter of the wealthiest ranchman in the Eagle Rock section, didn't appear worried in the least that the barred doors were yawning.

"Really I'd prefer to go to jail," she insisted. "You see I've always wanted to see Clara Phillips and Madalyn Obenchain and the other strange women who are said to be such desperate criminals.

"It would be a new experience and I'd get more out of 15 days in jail than I would anywhere else."

And so she went to jail.

Falck, former cashier of the United State bank, whose trial on the charge of embezzlement was set for today, entered a plea of guilty to the first and sixth counts of the indictment and was sentenced to serve one year in the state's prison at Waupun. The first count alleged falsification of statements to the state banking department and the sixth alleged misappropriation of funds. Falck will start serving his sentence immediately.

O'Shea Claims Movies Have Greatest Influence

Movies are exerting more influence on the young people today than schools and church combined, according to Prof. M. V. O'Shea in his talk before the Wesley Forum at the University Methodist church Sunday night.

"One hour at the movies where colorful liveliness and action are played up strongly produces more thrill than a week in the classroom or in church" Professor O'Shea declared.

Professor O'Shea based the influence of the screen on its power of suggestion and appeal to fundamental motives. On the screen we permit that which we will not allow on the legitimate stage.

The influence of such characters as Charlie Chaplin and Theda Bara is greater than such men as Washington and Lincoln, he asserted. The juvenile court cases are showing the influence of amorous relations featured by the movies, in spite of the efforts made to subdue them.

Combined Directory is Delayed For One Week

Chocolates, Loaded With Poison, Sent to the Wrong Woman

Man Burned In Shack Died By Gas, Belief

Friend Found Victim in Unconscious Condition Before Fire

That Chris Johnson, 40-year-old bachelor, who was cremated in a shack near the sugar beet factory early Sunday night, was dead before fire broke out in his home, is the theory advanced today by Sam Nelson, Cottage Grove farmer, and an intimate friend of Johnson.

Nelson who came to call on Johnson Sunday evening, found the door locked. He peered through the window and saw Johnson sitting in an upright position beside the oil stove, his head bowed. He watched him for a few minutes but the man showed no signs of animation.

Believing that Johnson had been overcome with gas fumes from the stove, which were noticeable even from outside the shack, he went for help. As he turned, he saw flames shoot up from the stove.

"The room was filled with gas fumes from his oil stove when I looked in through the window about 8 o'clock," said Nelson, "and I tried the door but it was locked. I attempted to attract Johnson by pounding on the window and door but was unsuccessful. I guessed something was wrong and was on my way to get help when I saw the flames shoot out of the shanty and in a few minutes the place was ablaze.

"I know Johnson quite well, and was going to pay him a visit when I found him in an unconscious condition."

A leaky oil stove, on which the bachelor was in the habit of cooking his meals, is thought to be the most probable solution of the mysterious cremation.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at Schroeder's funeral chapel, it was announced today. Rev. Preuss of De Forest will officiate. Interment will be at the Lutheran cemetery in Sun Prairie.

Orchestra to Play At Armory Today

The Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, directed by Fritz Reiner, talented Hungarian musician, will make its second appearance in Madison in a concert at the armory tonight.

Mr. Reiner, director of the 80-piece orchestra, has an international reputation as a leader. He is making his first appearance in the United States with this orchestra, and is recognized by critics in this country as well as on the continent as the most talented among the younger orchestra conductors of today.

The orchestra comes to Madison from Cincinnati where it has filled a long concert engagement, giving a series of entertainments before large audiences.

Wealthy Farmer's Daughter Confesses in Poison Plot; Mistake, she Says

(By the Associated Press)

CHILTON, Wis.— Miss Anna Lenz, 30, daughter of a wealthy farmer, is to be arraigned today on a charge of murder, following her alleged confession yesterday, that she sent poisoned candy which resulted in the deeath of Mrs. Frank Schneider.

According to Dist. Atty. Arps, Miss Lenz admitted buying poison and inserting it in a chocolate bar intending to send it to Mrs. Henry Schneider, sister-in-law of the dead woman. She said, according to the district attorney, that she did not discover her mistake until she heard of the death of Mrs. Frank Schneider after eating the candy. She then visited the Schneider home and destroyed the package and wrapper, according to the confession. According to the district attorney Miss Lenz gave the following reason for sending the poison:

That Mrs. Henry Schneider had spread reports that she had attended a dance with Frank Schneider and that Frank was responsible for her condition. She said that this had preyed on her mind.

Mrs. Schneider died last Tuesday after eating candy received through the mails. She was the mother of eight children.

Postal Inspector F. N. Niles, of Fond du Lac, played a prominent part in bringing about the arrest.

A druggist testified before the district attorney, that Miss Lenz had bought poison a few days before the tragedy and a grocer said he had sold her a chocolate bar. A mail man recalled having received a box from her home to mail on the date of the poisoning.

"If other riparian owners will imitate their example I am sure the commissioners of public lands, and I believe, the legislature will take the necessary steps to give Milwaukee a lake shore boulevard that will be the most beautiful on the Great Lakes."

Bed-time Stories

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE TURKEY.

Uncle Wiggily was about to hop away from his hollow stump bungalow one morning when he and Nurse Jane heard, at the back door, a voice loudly calling:

"Gobble-obble-obble!"

"Bless my pink nose!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "What's that?"

"You might better ask who it is," said Nurse Jane with a little shiver. "I think it's the Woozie Wolf or the Fuzzy Fox!"

"No, it isn't" spoke Uncle Wiggily, looking from a side window. "Nor yet is it the busy Bob Cat! It's the Turkey Gobbler!"

"The Turkey Gobbler!" cried Nurse Jane. "It can't be! He should be over to the Farmer's getting fat for Thanksgiving!"

"Gobble-obble-obble!" again sounded at the back door. There was no doubt of it now—as Uncle Wiggily opened the door in walked Mr. Gobbler.

"Good morning, Uncle Wiggily," gobbled the Gobbler, as he spread his tail out like a big fan. "And good morning to you also, Nurse Jane," went on the Turkey. "I came to see if you would take a boarder in for a few days," he went on. "Have you room for a boarder?"

"What kind of a boarder?" asked Nurse Jane. "I don't exactly keep a boarding bungalow, but if it was some one I knew, and——"

"I'm speaking for myself," said the Gobbler with a low and polite bow. "I want to come and live with Uncle Wiggily a few days."

"But what about Thanksgiving?" cried Nurse Jane. "Thursday is Thanksgiving and——"

"That's just the trouble," said Mr. Turkey. "I want to stay here until after Thanksgiving. I did think of spending it at home with the Farmer, but this morning I heard the cook saying how well I would look when stuffed and on the table, so I decided to come away and board out over Thanksgiving. You'll put me up, won't you, Uncle Wiggily?" begged the Turkey.

"Oh, yes! I guess so," answered the bunny. "Mr. Turkey may share my room," said the bunny to Nurse Jane. "Put in an extra bed and he may stay until after Thanksgiving."

"I'll be safe then," said the Gobbler. "The Farmer will have had his Thanksgiving dinner and won't care about stuffing me. Thank you, so much, Uncle Wiggily. I'll try not to be any bother. Oh! by the way, are you going to have a Thanksgiving dinner?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Nurse Jane, "we are."

"Oh! then perhaps I have come to the wrong place," and Mr. Turkey turned pale—that is, as pale as a Gobbler can turn.

"Don't worry!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "We won't eat you or even nibble you. We're going to have chocolate cake, pudding, cookies and such like things for our Thanksgiving."

"Thank goodness!" murmured the Turkey. "I wish there were more like you, Uncle Wiggily. I'd have more to be thankful for if there were. But, anyhow, I'm safe for a time. I think I'll go up to bed now, if you don't mind," he said, nervous like.

"What! Go to bed in the day time!" cried the bunny. "Why it is morning and I just got up."

"I think—in fact I feel sure—if it's all the same to you—I'd feel safer in bed," said the Turkey, still rather pale.

"All right", said Nurse Jane. "I'll put an extra bed in Uncle Wiggily's room for you."

So the Turkey went to sleep in the day time, while Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods to have an adventure. The bunny hopped near the farm of the Farmer. Mr. Longears saw the cook, the hired man and the Farmer running about very much excited, calling one to the other:

"Where's the Turkey? Where is our Thanksgiving Turkey?"

"But they aren't asking me, so why should I tell them?" chuckled Uncle Wiggily to himself. And when he had hopped back home and had told the Turkey, the Gobbler was very thankful he was in the bunny's bungalow.

That night, when Mr. Turkey was sleeping in Uncle Wiggily's room the Fuzzy Fox climbed up outside the hollow stump bungalow by the rain water pipe and entered the bunny's bed room.

"Here's where I nibble some ears for my Thanksgiving dinner," whispered the Fox. He leanded over a bed in the darkness. The Fox thought Uncle Wiggily was asleep in the bed—but it was Mr. Turkey Gobbler.

"Nibble-nibble!" went the Fox, taking soft little bites at first. But he was nibbling at the Turkey's tail, and all of a sudden the big Thanksgiving bird awakened.

"Gobble-obble-obble! Gobble-gobble! Obble! Obble!" cried the Turkey, leaping out of bed, and with his strong wings beat that Fox all over, on his body, nose and legs.

"Ouchie! Wouchie!" howled the Fox, "Oh, what a mistake I made!" and out of the window he jumped in the darkness, banging his nose on the ground.

"Ah, but I didn't make any mistake when I took the Turkey in to spend Thanksgiving!" laughed Uncle Wiggily when he heard what had happened after Nurse Jane had brought in a light. "Oh what a joke on the Fox!"

And so it was! The bad chap had no ears to nibble for Thanksgiving and it served him right. And if the lead pencil doesn't try to put a sheet of paper on the rag doll's bed and tickle her toes, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Thanksgiving.

The Ways of A Widow

By Grace Phelps

NAN REPORTS THE MEETING TO DR. JIMMIE.

It was too late that evening to report to Nan but shortly after breakfast the next morning Elsie hurried to Mrs. Norton's. She would be late for church, but she wanted to know how Jimmy was. Nan told her there had been a change. He still slept heavily. She listened eagerly to what Elsie had to say.

"Ethel Grant was scared half to death when George came in," Elsie finished. "She knew it must be one of her families. Mr. Sinclair was careful not to look at her, but she gave herself away."

"It was sporting of her to come to the meeting," Nan commented. "She isn't a coward, anyway."

"Don't be too sure of that," Elsie warned. "She came because she wanted to make a scene. The very fact that she didn't do it makes me think she means to do something underhand."

"O nonsense!" laughed Nan. "What could she do? Besides, old man Morgan is a worse offender. He has a whole row of shanties that have no proper water drainage. She has only two houses. It's rather hard on her that one of her families should be down with the disease. If she is wise she'll keep still and let Andy Morgan bear the brunt of the crusade. She has the excuse that it was the business of the board of health to give her notice. I don't believe even Jimmie knew about her houses."

Elsie hurried away and Nan returned to her patient. As she gave him his breakfast she told him what had happened the night before at the meeting.

"Elsie acted as secretary," she told him, remembering her resolution. "Wasn't it brave of her?"

"Very," said Jimmie briefly. He felt better this morning, but still oddly lethargic. Nan forgot for a moment that she was dealing with an invalid. It was provoking to have one's efforts so unappreciated!

"You don't seem greatly interested!" Her tone betrayed her irritation.

Jimmie's shrug was lost among his pillows.

"Elsie's a nice little thing if that's what you mean. For the rest, I can't see that they did much. By the time the committee gets busy every family in that row will be sick. The respectable ones know their own families are safe. They'd get into action mighty quick if they were in danger."

Like everyone else, Nan had lost sight of the fact that while they were debating other families were drinking the tainted water.

"It's too bad you weren't there," she said. Jimmie made no reply and the subject died a natural death. She would have to do better if she were to make any headway in Elsie's case Nan thought. Bert Weston knocked on the door presently to inquire after her patient and gave her the excuse she sought.

"If you don't mind," she returned to Jimmie's bedside, "I'll go out for a drive with Bert. You seem so much better this morning and I feel the need of fresh air. I'll be back by the time Dr. Waldron gets here."

"Don't mind me," came the gruff answer. I'm all right."

Bert! So it was Bert now! Jimmie rolled over and stared at the door through which Nan had gone. Well, wasn't that just what he had expected? What right did he have to kick, anyhow? The sooner he got well the better. He couldn't stand having her so near much longer. It was too hard on him, knowing as he did that she was in love with another man.

MEATLESS MEALS

Less medicine and more attention to what we eat is the order of the day now and many people are eliminating meat from their diets or at least partially doing so. It is hard on the housewife as we are so in the habit of relying on a meat course for the hearty meal that it is hard to find a satisfactory substitute. The following recipes may help on the meatless menus which all of us like once in a while, whether dieting or not.

One good one is baked rice and cheese. Boil the rice in milk in a double boiler until it is tender. Then pour into a baking dish and put a thick layer of grated cheese over it. Bake it until the cheese has browned. Salt the rice, of course.

Here is a good vegetarian loaf recipe:

Two cups crumbs, two eggs, one cup milk, two cups pecans, one teaspoon summer savory, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper and celery salt, one-half cup melted butter.

Soak crumbs in egg and milk. Grind nuts. Mix and bake in greased pan one-half hour. Baste with the melted butter. Garnish with parsley.

And here is a recipe for a baked macaroni omelet that is especially good.

One pint thick white sauce, cooled, six egg yolks beaten in two at a time, six egg whites, beaten stiff, folded in last, salt and pepper.

Put boiled macaroni, broken in inch pieces, in buttered baking dish. Pour omelet over macaroni, and bake till done. May be served with half cup beaten butter sweetened with one up sugar.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice

Heart and Home Problems

Declare Boy Sweetheart Is Fickle And Holds Love Lightly

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a high school girl, eighteen year old, and I have been going with a young man of the same age. When school opened this year this boy seemed to like me right away. He would sit and look at me in class and after a week he asked if he might come to see me. That was the beginning and before we knew each other long he wrote me letters, telephoned every day and came over about three times a week, just as often as my father would let him. He told me that he loved me and asked me not to go with any other boy. He also talked of the time we would be married, but he never asked me to marry him in so many words and he did not give me an engagement ring.

Now he has changed and he is acting the same way toward another girl. I love him very much and it breaks my heart to know that there is some one else. He has not even explained to me, but has just left me without a word. Do you think it would be right for me to tell him to come over because I want to talk to him, or should I write a letter and ask for an explanation?

BROKEN-HEARTED.

Neither, ask him to come to see you nor write him a letter. The fact that he is so devoted to some one else is explanation enough. It shows that he is fickle and holds girls and love lightly. A young man of deeper nature would not be so hasty in declaring himself, but once he expressed his love it would mean more.

The only thing for you to do is to forget this young man and in the future be skeptical of any one of the love-at-first-sight type.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a junior in school and have a boy friend whom I greatly adore. He was very friendly with me until a little disturnance came up, which I am afraid I caused. I apologized and we became friends again, but still I hardly think he is quite as friendly. This all happened about three months ago. Ever since then I have received letters with his name signed. He denies writing them. He says he has received letters too with my name signed. These names are in our own handwriting, but the letters are all typewritten. I really believe he is guilty although he denies it. I also am suspicious of one of my friends. She seems to be jealous of me.

Shall I ask her if she has done this and if she has, shall I cease to call her my friend. If the boy has done this shall, I give up his friendship?

EVERBODY ELSE.

A quarrel always leaves its mark, whether in friendship or in love. Sometimes it is ignored and the friendship goes on very much as before, but often it is impossible to overlook such a thing and neither friend feels the same confidence in the other again.

It would be an easy matter to imitate your signature and the boy's. Some person is playing a practical joke on you. I would advise you to throw the letters away without reading them, accusing no one of doing such a thing, because you will be happier in your ignorance.

Do not mention the letters to your boy friend after this, because it must be very annoying to him to have you believe he has written them when he tells you he has not. You wouldn't like it very well if he doubted your word about the matter and believed you sent the letters he receives.

Shopping Economy

SOUND MEAT

While it is true that we have very good laws relating to the sale of meat, and a government system of inspection, still everyone knows that there is undoubtedly much meat that is unfit for food on the market.

In some cases the inspectors are too few in number, making it easy for the unscrupulous dealer to sell meat forbidden by law and get way with it, and in other instances, inspectors have been known to be bribed.

Furthermore the Federal law applies only to goods shipped from state to state, and about half the meat consumed in the United states is slaughtered in local establishments never visited by the federal inspectors because such places are subject only to the laws of that state, which are often lacking or deficient. Even when the laws are there, sufficient funds are rarely appropriated to provide for their enforcement in as thorough manner as might be desired.

So the housewife must be her own judge of purity.

Select cuts which are firm and elastic to the touch, with hardly enough moisture to wet the finger. A wet, sodden, flabby muscle, interspersed with jelly-like fat is indicative of bad meat.

Reject meat which has dark, dry edges or spots.

Tender cuts have thin connective tissue holding the fiber in place, while heavy connective tissue means tough muscle.

The meat which has flecks of fat distributed all through the fibre will be more tender and possess more flavor than that without it.

If color meat should be neither pale pink nor deep purple; the former indicating that the animal was diseased, and the latter that it was not slaughtered but died a natural death.

Good meat is practically free from odor, and what there is should be distinctly agreeable. A sickly, cadaverous smell should be all that is required to stop the purchase.

Try different cuts until you learn which give your family the most satisfaction. Some cuts have more waste than others. With the increasing price of the so-called "cheaper cut", the difference in cost between them and the "select cuts" is not so important. Chuck and round steak now sell at so nearly the same prices as sirloin and porterhouse that when you consider the longer cooking required to render them tender and palatable, the saving is negligible.

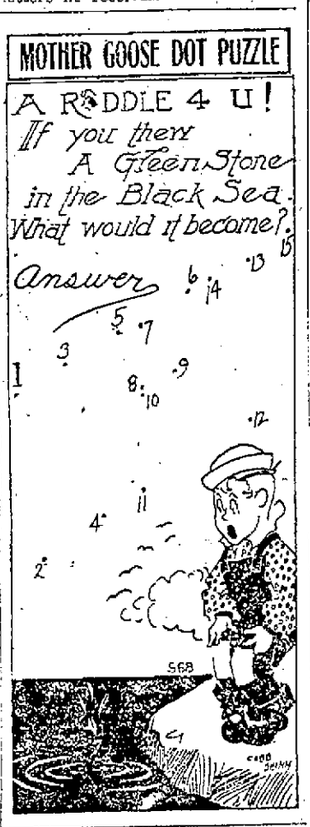

See the meat cut and weighed, and weigh again when you get home.

HAVE THE TRIMMINGS SENT HOME FOR USE in soup and stock.

Object to paying for the weight of the paper in which the cuts are wrapped.

Statue of Venus Given to University Museum

A perfect replica of the "Crouching Venus of the Vatican," executed in pure Italian white marble, was recently presented to the university. It has been placed on the landing of the stairs of the library leading to the reading room on the State street side. The statue was presented by W. B. E. Shufeldt of Oconomowoc.

"The statue is a beautiful piece of work," Charles E. Brown, curator of the Historical museum, declared. "It has been carved from one solid marble block of white marble. Its color cannot be surpassed."

The figure of Venus in the crouching position is about three-quarters life size, and the statue, mounted on a three foot pedestal of green marble, stands not quite six feet tall.

Billy Whiskers

The delay in getting the hose-cart to the fire on the night the hotel burned made the men of the town decide that they had better organize and have a regular volunteer fire company.

When Bobbie and Johnnie heard this, they made up their minds it would be great fun to have a volunteer fire company of boys, just like the one the men were going to form.

Bobbie's father had a small garden hose-cart in the stable which he said they could use, and Johnnie's father said he would furnish the hose, while another boy's father said he would supply the long ladders.

Now they were fixed. Bobbie was to drive Billy to the hose-cart, and Johnnie Nig to the hook-and-ladder cart, and the other boys were to assist, each one being assigned by vote to his place in the company. Bobbie was the captain, Johnnie the lieutenant, and so on down.

The boys already had rubber coats, so they coaxed their mothers to buy them rubber boots and regular firemen's hats, with the visors behind. And when all rigged out in their regalia and sitting on their respective carts and driving down the street, believe me, they looked fine. And I am quite sure if willing hearts and hands could put out a fire, these boys would.

They had gotten permission from the principal of the school to be excused the minute a fire alarm was turned in. The alarm sounded in the school yard and the second it started its warning every boy who belonged to the fire company quickly got up and quietly walked out of the schoolroom, but once they turned into race horses, they ran so fast for the engine.

Had there been many fires, of course this could not have been done, but there were so few and it was so dangerous to the little town when most of the houses were built of wood, that the principal encouraged the boys' fire company all he could, and allowed those who belonged to be excused half an hour earlier every Wednesday so they could go to fire drill. For every Wednesday and Saturday they went through the performances of getting Billy and Nig and hitching them to the carts and driving to the fire plugs, where they would attach the hose and go through all the performances, just as if there was a real fire.

The Juvenile Fire Company had been in existence about a month and doing fine work when it was proposed to have, at the Fourth of July celebration, a match between the senior and the Juvenile Fire Companies.

Oldest Society Brings Cellist Here Thursday

Miss Vera Poppe, South African cellist who has played with many European symphony orchestras, will appear Thanksgiving evening at Turner hall under the auspices of the Mennerchor society.

The Mennerchor society is the oldest singing society west of Chicago. The concert Thursday evening will be its seventy-second annual concert. Founded in 1850, the organization has existed to the present day with but two interruptions. The first one was during the Civil war when many of the members enlisted, and the second occurred during the last war, when a large part of the members enlisted.

Many of the present members of the society have been affiliated with it since it was founded, and some of the men who are to appear on the program Thursday with Miss Poppe are over 80 years old, and are still accomplished musicians.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. When it arrives put it on and wear it. Put it to every test you can think of. The harder the test the better you will like it. You will wonder how you ever got along with the old style cumbersome spring trusses or belts with leg straps of torture. Your own good, common sense and your own doctor will tell you it is the only way in which you can ever expect a cure. After wearing it 30 days, if it is not entirely satisfactory in every way—if it is not easy and comfortable—if you cannot plainly see your rupture getting better and if not convinced that a cure is only a question of time, just return it and you are out nothing. Any rupture appliance that is sent on 30 days' trial before you pay is worth giving a trial. Why not tell your ruptured friends of this great offer. I refer you to any bank here. Dr. Andrews, 709 Reed Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.—Adv.

CHRONIC SUFFERERS

I want to talk to you. The fact that you have been treated elsewhere without benefit does not discourage me in the least; I am helping men and women every day, effecting cures, many times in cases pronounced incurable by others so that I feel sure I can do as much for you. My counsel will cost you nothing, but my charges for treatment will be reasonable and not more than you will be willing to pay for benefits conferred.

I treat Rheumatism, Nervousness, Stomach and Heart Troubles, Catarrh, Blood and Skin Diseases, Constipation, Urinary and Kidney Diseases peculiar to women.

Verona Farm Has Deep Cave Which Emits Weird Sounds

Cavern on Jacob Smith Property Has Never Been Fully Explored; Searchers Report Failure

Tales of weird sound and queer moanings when the wind is in the southeast are regularly repeated on the farm of Jacob Smith, three miles northeast of Verona where a large cave is said to undermine part of the fields and end in the Mississippi River to the west. The entrance is about a half mile from the house and is easily ten feet high and about six feet wide. A great overlapping ridge of rocks and dirt looms menacingly over the head of the visitor at the mouth of the cavern which is nearly blocked with large boulders and tree trunks. The proper outfit to explore the dark depths is a pair of overalls and boots, several balls of twine and either a supply of candles or a flashlight.

Neighbors in the vicinity have entered the cave to various depths, but have never reached the end. Several of the explorers report the presence of a small lake or pond about five hundred feet from the entrance which is said to have considerable depth and is supposed to furnish water for various wells and springs in the neighborhood. This theory is very plausible as various sounds and whistlings can be distinctly heard at the well on the Smith farm when the wind comes from the direction of the cave. Searching parties from various parts of the state have endeavored to find the end and one party is said to have gone nearly a half mile into the depths but was forced to return because of lack of lighting facilities. In the winter the whistling becomes so audible that at times it tricks the residents into believing that visitors are approaching and sounding their call.

Gus and Rohrke Fight Over Ball Rollie is Given

At the final whistle was blown that ended the Chicago-Wisconsin game at Stagg Field Saturday afternoon Gus Tebell, Badger end took the pig-skin and started to the dressing rooms with it. Rohrke, Maroon end saw Gus with the oval and knocked it out of his hands, picked it up and started to the Chicago dressing rooms with it—but with Gus at his heels. He overtook Rohrke and demanded the pig-skin and a near fight ensued when police arrived on the scene.

Tebell allowed Rohrke to go on his way with the ball.

Later, Coach Stagg entered the Badger dressing rooms with the pig-skin and presented it to Rollie Williams. "The Old Man" slightly sentimental, realized that Rollie would want the oval used in his last game of a brilliant three year career and gave it to him with "best wishes."

Anyway, Gus wants part of the pigskin, even if it's only a part of the lacing—and Rollie says he can have it.

Rohrke too may be presented with part of the lacing that he and Gus fought over.

Selections Made After Interviews With Six Coaches in the 'Big Ten' Conference; Williams Named Captain

Locke and Heldt, Only Iowa Men to be Selected for Capital Times First Mythical Team; "Marty" Below's Great Work Deserves Credit; Williams, Unanimous Choice

By BRYN GRIFFITHS

WHEN the curtain dropped at the close of the "Big Ten" grid season last Saturday, sporting writers throughout the west took steps to pick their "All-Conference" eams—a job which falls to every writer who follows conference games all season.

THE CAPITAL TIMES sporting editor has seen six of the "Big Ten" teams in action and has interviewed coaches of each of these teams, following the games. The object of the interviews was to get some idea from these mentors which men in the conference are deserving of places on the so-called mythical elevens. The selections on this page today are based on the opinions of these coaches and personal observations of the writer.

It will be noticed that Wisconsin has three men on the team. This is not done because of any sentimentality on the part of the sporting editor towards the Wisconsin team. It is a fair and unbiased opinion of the worth of these three players. No sport writer will dispute that Wisconsin should be up on the top with Michigan and Iowa this year.

In glancing over the accompanying "All-Conference" team the reader might be somewhat surprised to see that only two men of Iowa, Locke at fullback, and Heldt, center, are chosen for the mythical eleven. However, this should not be startling. It is true that Iowa is tied with Michigan for conference honors, but Iowa's schedule during the past season shows that Jones' team hasn't had such a tough go after all.

Conference teams met by Iowa are not considered leaders now that the season is closed. Iowa's schedule called for games with Minnesota, Illinois, Ohio and Northwestern. Minnesota lost three conference games. Illinois dropped four and should have lost five—the fifth against Wisconsin, but on November 11 the Suckers were playing away over their heads and annexed a victory; Ohio was lucky to cop but one of her five conference battles, and Northwestern with three conference battles lost wasn't a worthy foe of the Hawkeyes. Taking the above facts into consideration the writer would rather award the conference title to Michigan—even though the Wolverines played but four "Big Ten" gams. Yost's men encountered Wisconsin, one of the strongest teams in the conference. What the result would have been if Iowa and Wisconsin would have clashed is difficult to tell.

Michigan and Iowa both have met Ohio, Illinois, Minnesota. Acording to comparative scores the Wolverines have an edge because of the results of these games. Following are compar tive scores on these games:

Michigan 19, Ohio 0.
Iowa 12, Ohio 9.
Michigan 24, Illinois 0.
Iowa 8, Illinois 7.
Michigan 16, Minnesota 7.
Iowa 28; Minnesota 14.

Also, it should be remembered that Iowa played Minnesota a week after Wisconsin finished with Spaulding's men and caused three of them to reside on the sidelines during the encounter at Iowa City, Iowa.

It is on the facts stated here that Iowa must be contented with only two men on THE CAPITAL TIMES mythical eleven.

Locke Great Player

Locke is conceded by practically all coaches in the west as the premior fullback in the "Big Ten." Although Iowa has a fairly well balanced team Locke's ability to batter an opposing line, skirt the ends, or run from open field formations have resulted in his being a marked man in every game this year. Furthermore he is a veteran and his work on the 1921 championship team stood out. Locke's exhibition in the Yale bowl this fall causes many writers to believe the Hawkeye player will be given much heralding by eastern writers.

Cappon, Michigan and J. Thomas, Chicago will undoubtedly be picked by some writers as their fullback. The writer has seen both of these boys stopped "dead" this year and unable to penetrate the opposition's wall. Both are supposed to be top-notchers—and have been against "so-so" teams. When they bucked up against a line that had the "stuff" it was a different story. What did Cappon do against Wisconsin? Totalling up his yards gained and lost in the Wisconsin tilt it is brought out that he lost 7 more yards than he gained.

Thomas is a plunger, everyone will admit. He demonstrated this against Princeton when he scored three touchdowns. A fault of the Chicago man though, is the fact that he is only good for about one quarter of a game. Thomas has never played a full game. Stagg realizes this weakness and keeps his pet on the sidelines until Maroon backs have carried the ball within scoring distance, when he would insert Thomas who might succeed in putting the oval across the chalk line for a touchdown. Any player who can't stand the gaff for a full game—or at least a half, isn't deserving of being picked for an "All-Conference" job. Furthermore, it isn't because Thomas is worked too hard while he is in. This was shown at Stagg Field last Saturday against Wisconsin. Turns at carrying the pig-skin were evenly distributed among the men by quarterback Strohmeier.

Williams As Captain

Rollie Williams, captain and halfback on the Wisconsin team is selected a pilot for the mythical eleven at his regular position. Any fair minded sporting writer who has watched the scintillating Cardinal flash in action in conference games this season can't help but name Rollie for a backfield job. Conference coaches, especially Yost and Spaulding have come out and stated that Williams is one of the speediest, cleverest and most consistent backs in the country. It is a well known fact that in recent games Rollie has been a marked man—but despite this he has been the shining light on the grid. He rarely fails to gain through the line, can skirt the ends as no other back has this year, and because of his great speed an ability to pivot, dodge, squirm, fight and push his way through an opposing team. A punter never directs a kick in his direction. Kickers have been instructed to boot out of bounds rather than give Williams a chance to return the oval. Past experience has shown what Williams does when a kick is dropped into his area. There is no telling when the scrappy player will stop. Williams is picked a captain because of his leadershi. The Edgerton boy has a leader's personality and members of his team have unlimited faith in him. This alone justifies the selection of Rollie as captain.

Kipke At Other Half

Kipke, Michigan is chosen as Williams' running mate at the other half. True, there are such men as Martineau and McCreery, Minnesota, Workman, of Ohio State, Keefer, Michigan and many others. All mentioned here would bolster any team but Kipke's ability to carry the ball, kick and forward pass make him first choice for the job. It was largely through the great work of this great player that Yost has a championship team this year. When "All-American" teams are selected it wouldn't be surprising to see the Michigan back "up among 'em."

Uteritz Clever Quarter

The quarterback position was probably the easiest for the writer to pick. Uteritz, Michigan is awarded this honor. There is a scarcity of quarterbacks in the conference this year if there ever was. Such men as Aubrey Devine, Iowa's quarter in 1921 are rare. The two outstanding quarterbacks in the conference were Uteritz, Michigan and Barr, Wisconsin. The Wolverine pilot, although weighing but 140 pounds was a menace to any team. His ability to size the opponent's weaknesses was almost uncanny. It never took long for Uteritz to size up the opposition and direct his team accordingly. Yost would not permit Uteritz to carry the ball very often as he believes that a quarterback should direct, as a general on the field of battle, and not get in the "thick of it." The exhibition of Uteritz against Wisconsin was not startling it is admitted. He fumbled punts, and was not very successful in carrying the ball back either—but like other players, that day was the "off" one. His directing the team so as to take advantage of the breaks meant much toward winning the game. It isn't every quarter who knows how to take advantage of the breaks. One instance was following Tebell's removal from the game when Uteritz directed the next play around that end, where Irish was substituted. It meant ten yards, bringing the oval to Michigan's one yard line where Cappon went over in two attempts.

Noel Workman, Ohio State quarterback at the start of the 1922 season might have been selected for the job but was forced out early in the year because of being ineligible. His brother Hodge is a great player at a half position—but is not a quarterback and can't be considered as one as he hasn't piloted the Buckeyes from the quarter job this year.

Tebell "Old Reliable"

The end positions are awarled to Kirk, Michigan and Tebell, Wisconsin, without much hesitancy on the part of the writer. Both players are like Rollie Williams at half, in that their game is consistent throughout the season. Both are great fighters, follow the ball, know how to handle passes, and are strong on the defense.

Gus Tebell is a veteran of three years on the Wisconsin team. Even during his three years his work ahs stood out as an important factor in the Badger line.

Goebel, Michigan, Hanney, Indiana, Pulaski, Wisconsin, and Wilson, Illinois, all are capable men but lack the class Tebell and Kirk possess.

Kirk has a slight edge over the Wisconsin man. The Wolverine flank protected by Kirk is one of the strongest in the country. Little has been gained around him, while on the offense his backs have had plenty of success—thanks to Kirk who helps pave the way.

Hanney is undoubtedly among the leaders as far as the end positions are concerned, but it is a fact that he was used in the backfield more than on the end and didn't have a chance to show his wares. A man can't be selected to an end job just because he is brought back to the backfield and hits the line for large gains. A backfield job differs from an end position.

King, Chicago, at Center

At center, Heipt of Iowa is named. Aas, captain of the Minnesota eleven is heralded by some King, Chicago. The Hawkeye center is a tower of strength in the Iowa forward wall.

Nichols Deserves Credit

Nichols, Badger choice at the pivot has played on even terms with every center in the conference this year. The Cardinal player has another year yet and if he keeps going the way he has, Wisconsin will have an "All-Conference" man next year.

BELOW AT TACKLE

"Marty" Below, captain-elect of the Wisconsin team and Fletcher, tackle on Stagg's eleven are named for the tackle positions. These men too, are picked without much hesitancy. Below was the main cog in the Badger's forward wall that stopped Cappon, Michigan, and Thomas, Chicago. He plays low, and knows that men like Cappon can't be stopped by riding their backs. Another factor in Below's playing is his speed. Even on punts, he is down often times ahead of the ends. This shows rare ability on his part.

Fletcher Too

Fletcher, Chicago is given the other tackle without much argument, although Muirhead, Michigan, Gross, Minnesota, Penfield, Northwestern and Abrahamson, Minnesota are all close contenders. Fletcher is a veteran, knows the game and plays it the way a tackle should. Fletcher should be given much credit for the gains Maroon backs make through the line.

Lewis Not Dependable

Capt. Lewis, Chicago might be selected by some for a tackle. Lewis, however, lacks what players call "the suff." He has not played much this year. A noticeable fact in Lewis's record this year is that his team does better without him than with him. Although the Maroon captain (who received his captaincy when Milton Romney was forced to give up the honor) has never been outwardly accused of being a quitter, there has been much talk on the midway that Lewis was all right to lead the team onto the field for the start of the game and after a few plays Stagg would yank him, or Lewis himself would leave the grid voluntarily to be replaced by another man.

McMillen, Best Guard

Most sport writers will select McMillen, Illinois and Pixley, Ohio State as their choice for the guard jobs. McMillen especially should be the unanimous choice. He is one of the hardest fighters in the conference, is always wide awake, and forms a bulwark of strength in the Sucker's forward wall. I nevery game his ability was quite noticeable. He has outplayed every man man who has played opposite him—and further than that he covers more territory than any lineman the writer has ever seen.

Pixley With McMillen

Pixley, Ohio State is deserving of the other guard position. Ohio won but a single conference game but it was not through any fault of Pixley that Wilce's team didn't cop others. He plays like McMillen and this pair would certainly do a lot of damage in a game.

Naturally, the selections here will be disputed by some—but the writer is convinced, after interviews with coach Richards, Wisconsin; Yost, Michigan; Spaulding, Minnesota; Zuppke, Illinois; Stagg, Chicago; and Pat Herron, Indiana that the lineups here are fair and representative as it is possible to choose.

Roundy Says:

It's All Over Now! I've Never In My Football Days Seen A Better Wisconsin Team Than This Year's

It's all over now as far as conference football goes. There are a [illegible] of games [illegible] Turkey day and [illegible] we will be ready [illegible] "All-American" and "All conference" football selections from every cittie and hamlet on the globe.

Below proved in that Chicago game that he stands head and shoulders above all tackles in the game. This year his work was great enough to have him be on the "All-American" team next year. He was down on kicks as fast as the ends, tore holes in the line in big pattern fashion and can [illegible] up a play. It is impossible to get him out of a play, and for an opposing back to make yardage over his position. Buck and Butler were great as they made them but they never had a thing on Below at their best. I will never forget the playing of Below in those Michigan and Chicago games. It seems as if there never was a man who is on the [illegible] lips so much as this fellow Below.

* * *

[illegible] Time.

[illegible] looking for it for [illegible] I became a [illegible] fame, and it [illegible] to have [illegible] team be a [illegible] my tip and fol- [illegible] a greater dif- [illegible] backfield [illegible] to the fact that there [illegible] back there. Watch and [illegible]

I would like to shout from all the house tops that Pat Smith, the other Wisconsin tackle was a shining light in that game last Saturday. He sure made a sucker out of his opponent in that game. Chicago took time out twice just on account of Pat. The linemen were given instructions to work on him and keep him blocked but the talk was useless. Smith tackled Thomas, the fullback, four times in a row before he ever hit the line with his headguard. Thomas even went as far as to point from his position to the linemen towards Smith to block him and on the next play he [illegible] Thomas, and [illegible] for a loss at a shot at [illegible] tackle. This man Smith is [illegible] from the best in the west [illegible] work has gone a [illegible] by most writers [illegible] column has seen his work [illegible] season and in that Chicago game it was wonderful.

* * *

Get [illegible] Ball.

[illegible] seems [illegible] some man [illegible] Wisconsin [illegible] who can [illegible] more times [illegible] Chicago [illegible] that they nearly waited [illegible] man [illegible] You have [illegible] go at that [illegible] game [illegible] fashion [illegible] on that. It [illegible] that fine [illegible] don't have to [illegible] to get a fumble [illegible] instinct to nearly [illegible] fumble. I [illegible] that Wisconsin has recovered [illegible] important fumbles in a pinch in over 10 years. You cannot be a smart football team if you don't follow the ball. That is a cinch. This statement is no tip, it's a fact and a world of truth.

* * *

Am I Right?

Before another season drifts along, it will have to be done. If there is not one in school then have the alumni get busy and get somebody to come to this school from their home town that can make a place kick or a drop kick and this thing of getting on the 20 and 25 yard line all season and not having a player who can get 3 points is a joke. Wisconsin has got to go and get a man who can turn that trick for next season and for other seasons. In the future the value of that point has come up. For instance in the Michigan game three times and one goal if made for Wisconsin would have beaten Michigan that day. No team in the world could have beaten Wisconsin this year if we scored twice. It came up very often in this Chicago game Saturday and last year's game also, and we had a million chances in the Illinois game for its use. Of course a touchdown should have been made in that game only for fumbling.

* * *

I never in my football days ever saw a better Wisconsin football team than Wisconsin had this year, but a goal field kicker kept them from becoming champions, and maybe it didn't. Richards turned out a wonderful team with green men and you could see by Saturday's game that Harris' loss sure meant Wisconsin from beating Michigan and Chicago if he was in the pink to say.

* * *

Williams.

The Edgerton flash sure was in his fullbloom Saturday. He had everything to make him great. His short gains were full of thrills and his tackling was worth the price of the ticket even at scalpers' prices. He was in every play, and his fighting spirit was a great help to that game. He pulled Pyott down twice when it meant something to Wisconsin. I have seen them all at Wisconsin in their glory but W-I-L-L-I-A-M-S had the ideals of the greatest back I ever saw wear a Cardinal jersey. His work all season has been "All-American class" and his great work has not gone to his head as it does to some. Williams is a student, of the highest type, is one of those democratic chaps, loved by all, has a character that is of the highest type, on the field and off, is what this column terms a gentleman, and his name will live on the lips of Old Wisconsin students and graduates for E-V-E-R. He will slip off his jersey after basketball season as the greatest Badger player in three sports. This column is wishing Williams the greatest of luck in the business world and the Wisconsin university can stand lots of more Rollie Williams from now on. He is a credit to Wisconsin, the university, and to his home town, Edgerton. F-A-R-E-W-E-L-L, "Rollie."

* * *

Wasn't it a treat to see Gus Tebell in that game Saturday. Never in football history have I seen that playing dished up before. He was even greater than he was in Michigan which is saying a football mouthful It was a climax to a great day for Tebell as his mother and father and his brothers and sisters were at the game in a box to see him in his last game. He sure must have made the old folks real happy. I sure was glad to see Tebell go down in such a glory in his last effort in a Cardinal jersey on the gridiron. If Camp knows anything about football then Tebell will be on his "All-American" first team. He is as great at his position as Williams is at his. Here is another player who don't get it in the head and that thing alone has made him great where it has spoiled a lot of others. The Chicago team claims that Tebell is the best end in America today, and Yost of Michigan says the same because he told me that himself.

* * *

Pulaski played a star game as this column stated he would, and he sure played football last Saturday. There was not six inches made around him and his tackling was fierce. I told you last week that this bird, Pulaski, can run with that ball. That statement bore fruit Saturday. He was in that mix up Saturday all the time. His tackling I claim to be about the fiercest in the football world. He hits you, take it from me, and next year he will be a shining light. Pulaski and Irish next year will be wicked flanks to get around.

* * *

I have been pestered to death to have me run my selection for All-conference team. Wait folks, I am working night and day on it and I think it will be about as good as the one I selected last year which members of the Wisconsin team wrote and congratulated me as the best one they saw nearly complete.

Madison Labor Groups To Have Bowling League Of 40 Teams; Meet Wednesday

Arrange Final Details At Meeting in Labor Hall Tomorrow Night

More than 40 bowling teams of the Madison Labor organizations are expected to roll their initial games in the Madison Labor bowling league next week.

Final plans for the formation of the league will be completed Wednesday night when a meeting is to be held at Labor Temple. All members are urgently requested to attend so that details can be cleared up and the schedule gotten underway.

To date the following trades have entered teams: carpenters, two; plumbers, three; rail machinists, one; boilermakers, one; brewery, workers one; painters, two; and printers, one. There are 42 Labor organizations in the city and according to the committee in charge of the plans there will be at least 40 teams lined up for the maple boards by next week.

The Madison Labor Temple has two alleys that are now being resurfaced and put into excellent condition so that the games can be played there.

Ralph Syromer, representing the sheet metal workers is heat of the committee. Others on the committee are Joe Conohan, rail machinist, and Tim Crimmins, boilermaker.

New pins and balls have been purchased so that the league will be given a good start.

Prizes will be offered too. The committee as yet hasn't acted on what prizes are to be awarded. This will be done later, as the league progresses.

Hawkeyes Bid for Wisconsin Football Game

The University of Iowa has wired Wisconsin for a football game to be played next year by elevens representing the two institutions, Athletic Director Thomas E. Jones announced yesterday.

The Wisconsin department, replied immediately that it would be glad to consider the proposed contest which will be discussed at a meeting of the Wisconsin athletic council this afternoon.

Football schedules will be arranged at Chicago, Saturday, when a meeting of Big Ten Conference athletic directors and faculty representatives will be held at the Auditorium hotel and the University club.

Badger Slate Is Set

The Badger slate will provide for games with Indiana at Bloomington, Michigan and Minnesota at Madison, either Illinois or Iowa on their home gridirons, and Chicago at Chicago. Two preliminary games will be carded later with strong teams.

Athletic directors open their meeting at the Auditorium hotel at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening. At the same time, faculty representatives meet in the University club.

Prof. J. F. A. Pyre will represent the Wisconsin faculty and Director Thomas E. Jones will represent the athletic department at the meetings.

Minor Sports Meet Also

Baseball Coach Guy S. Lowman and Track Coach Thomas E. Jones will arrange the diamond and track schedules on Saturday morning, and in the afternoon, football slates will be drawn up. Minor sport coaches also line up their opponents at this time.

Final sessions on Saturday night will bring basketball coaches and officials together for a discussion and interpretation of the rules.

The convention will be closed at 9 o'clock with a joint meeting of athletic directors and faculty representatives of the 10 institutions.

Students Urge Eastern Game for Next Year

An intersectional football game between Wisconsin and some strong eastern team is the hope of the majority of students, according to an intensive canvass of student leaders conducted by The Cardinal yesterday.

Virtually every student answered the question with emphatic wishes for the intersectional game. In all cases it was brought out that Wisconsin would profit by the extensive advertising which would result.

"I always have been in favor of intersection games. Wisconsin could make a better show than many other western teams and we should break from our conservative habit before the issue becomes a dead letter," Leslie Gage '23, president of Union board declared.

Rollie Strong For It

Gus Tebell, varsity end on this year's football team, asserted that an eastern game would create more interest in the sport and, above all, would attract more prominent athletes to the university.

Captain Rollie Williams '23, said last night, "I am surely in favor of intersectional games. Our western teams have been underestimated because of the lack of an opportunity to play against eastern elevens.

Marjorie Severence '23, president of W. A. A. strongly urged an intersectional game for next year. Her belief was that Wisconsin is wrongly reputed as being a "social school" and that a mighty team battling against the strong eastern elevens each year would dispell this illusion.

Three reasons for having an intersectional game were put forth by Maynard Brown '23, president of the Student senate. He claimed that first, the students and the team want it, second, it would bring two strange sections together, and third it would make Wisconsin better known.

"I should like to see it," Cleo Parsley '23, president of S. G. A. asserted.

Robert Stewart '23, expressed himself as being in favor of the proposed games. He declared that he would not want the games to take the place of Conference games or would not want them to interfere with scholastic studies in any way.

Ski Club Will Plan Season's Tournament

Skiers and all those interested in skiing are invited to attend an open meeting of the Badger Ski club at 7:15 o'clock tonight in the green room of the Y. M. C. A.

Plans for the coming season, including the annual dual meet with Minnesota and the matter of encouraging inter-sectional competition by sending a team to the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, will be discussed. Arrangements will be made for giving information about skiing and assistance in teaching those who may desire to learn.

Special discounts on all skiing paraphenalia may be secured through the club and by this service new skiers may be assured of starting out with the equipment best suited to their needs.

"Chuck" Lewin, sports writer for The Cardinal, tomorrow morning will announce his choice of first and second All-Conference football teams.

RUNNERS AFTER FEATHERED BIRD IN TURKEY RACE

At the crack of the gun at high noon today aspirants for the annual Thanksgiving Turkey Race championship will leave the gym for the two mile race. Men are eligible who have not won W's in track.

The Turkey Race has become an annual affair at Wisconsin, being held on the Tuesday previous to each Thanksgiving day. No entry list has been posted, and the entries will be signed up as they report at the gym this noon.

Six prizes will be rewarded besides the cup which is given to the winner of the race each year. Awards are appropriate to the season

Kipke Will Captain 1923 Michigan Team

ANN ARBOR, Mich.— Harry G. Kipke of Lansing, Mich., star halfback of the Michigan 'varsity football eleven, was elected captain of the 1923 squad at a meeting of the "M" men today. Kipke, one of the best halfbacks Michigan has produced, has one more year to play.

Interest in College Athletics Increasing

That more interest is being taken in college athletics this year than ever before and that between 50,000 and 60,000 students will receive athletic training in western conference universities, is the belief of Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics. "These figures do not include the members of the varsity squads and, so far as spring sports are concerned, are based on last years reports," Maj. Griffith said. "These figures are especially interesting because with the tremendous growth in popularity of college sports there are many persons who read about the basketball five, or the baseball nine, or the football eleven, and then criticize college athletics because they think that all the time and money is spent on a few players."

Jim McMillin Will Lead Illinois in 1923

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — At the annual banquet given the University of Illinois football team by the Shampaign Rotarians on Monday, James W. McMillen of Grays Lake, Ill., was elected captain for next year. McMillen played left guard this year, and is reputed to be one of the best guards in the country.

Report of the Markets

Report for November 28, 1922

Wheat Buying Causes Rise; Corn Follows

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Wheat buying on the part of houses with foreign connections led to a material upturn here in prices today during early dealings. The fact that Liverpool quotations were unresponsive to declines yesterday on this side of the Atlantic was an additional stimulating factor and so too was an outspoken bullish opinion from the president of one of the largest grain companies here. Besides there was more or less demand based on the circumstances that was a traditional calendar date on which to buy wheat. The opening which ranged from ⅛ to 1⅛c higher, May 1.14¾@⅞ and July 1.06¾@⅞, was followed by further gains.

In subsequent trading the market ascended still higher aided by liberal import transactions. The close was strong, 1⅞ to 2⅝c net higher with May 1.16@⅛ and July 1.07⅝ @¾.

CORN — Corn moved up with wheat. After opening ½c to 1¼c higher May 69@½ the corn market continued to strengthen.

Continued demand from the west and the southwest was reported but eastern call was slow. The close was firm 1⅛c to 2⅛c net higher, with May 70⅛@¼.

OATS — Oats started a shade off to ⅛@¼c higher, May 42c and later scored a moderate general advance.

PROVISIONS— Provisions were firmer.

Few Badger Appointments Are Scheduled

Blaine Inauguration Will Hardly Affect State Offices

The inauguration of Governor Blaine into his second term of office, Jan. 1 is going to cause scarcely a ripple in state affairs as a result of Wisconsin's commission form of government.

When the governor enters on his second term, at the same time three new state officers take up their new positions, scarcely any of the state employes will be effected by the changes. Operation of the state civil service laws has placed practically all state employes out of politics and has practically eliminated the appointive power formerly lodged in state officers, except so far as it applies to the governor.

The attorney general's office is to have the first openings when Herman L. Ekern, the new attorney general, takes over his duties. He will have the appointment of a deputy general and of one assistant general to make at once. The assistant's position made vacant by the resignation of John F. Baker, defeated candidate for attorney general, now pays $4,500 and is a civil service office.

Fred R. Zimmerman, incoming secretary of state, will have the appointment of an assistant secretary of state to make on his inauguration. It is thought that L. A. Gordon, present incumbent under Elmer S. Hall, will be retained. The salary is $3,500.

An assistant state treasurer is to be appointed by Solomon Levitan, newly elected state treasurer. He has mentioned no one as yet to succeed Harry Germond who has served under State Treasurer Henry Johnson.

Governor Blaine opens his appointing season in February when the terms of a number of important commissions expire. First on the list is C. P. Norgord, commissioner of agriculture for the past six years, whose term of office ends early in February. A successor has not been mentioned for this $5,000 a year job.

Another $5,000 office is that of Henry Trumbower, member of the railroad commission. Mr. Trumbower's term ends in February but it is expected here that he will probably be re-appointed. J. D. Morrissey, superintendent of public property, ends his first term in January. His re-appointment is expected, as is that of J. Emery, dairy and food commissioner, whose term ends in February.

The term of G. L. Harrington, conservation commissioner, ends in February and that of George B. Harris, president of the board of control, in April. Marshall Cousins, commissioner of banking, completes his term in May; Platt Whitman, commissioner of insurance, ends his term in July, and Edward Nordman, commissioner of markets, in September. It is assumed that Mr. Nordman will be reappointed.

Two vacancies on the board of normal regents and two others on the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin are expected to give the governor control of those two bodies as he will have control of the state administrative departments.

Eggs Frozen

Madison Company Charged With Importing Mislabeled Goods

Preliminary hearing in the case of the M. J. Power Co., Madison corporation, charged with violation of the dairy food law, was to be held in superior court late this afternoon.

Frozen eggs, placed in tins not properly labeled, and then stored away, and transportation of frozen eggs from Iowa to Madison, without properly labeling the tins, are the charges that will be preferred against the corporation.

The M. J. Power Co. was convicted of violation of the dairy food laws in January, 1921, and was fined $50 and costs for that offense.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

A school for women politicians has been opened in Ohio, Mrs. Halsey W. Wilson, of New York City, national suffragist leader and prominent Democratic party worker, has just opened the school which is called a "temporary school of Democracy" at Akron. She will undertake to train the women of Ohio who will start making stump speeches for the Democratic party. Some of her advice to her pupils is:

Don't under any circumstances wear a veil when speaking.

NO BABIES, NO VOTE IS NEW IDEA

The women of Bulgaria in agitating for the franchise have met obstacles different from those encoutered in other lands. Premier Stamboulisky, who is most of the government issued a decree limiting the privilege of the vote to only such women as are engaged in agricultural or industrial pursuits and to mothers. His motto is: "No work and no babies, no vote." The premier however, has not been consistent. Some time ago he appointed a woman to a high diplomatic post at Washington, an appointee who is neither a laborer nor a mother, but a member of the aristocracy.

WOMEN AS STRIKEBREAKERS

The King of Spain is believed to have displayed a stroke of genius by calling on the women of Spain to take the places of the striking postmen. The postoffice strike had caused great confusion in transportation and delivery of the mails, and much sabotage was indulged in. The women of Spain, who have received probably fewer privileges than in any other European country responded with enthusiasm, thousands entering the service and they soon showed efficiency and gave satisfaction. The move proved popular with the people of every class, since it added to the number of bread-winners of the country. So successful has the experiment proved, and so willing have the men been to stop work and go on a strike that there is talk of applying the plan to other departments of the government.

D. Lincoln Orr, secretary of the Madison Square poultry show, made a flying trip down to Washington, D. C. to look over the "chicken." Evidently the ducks appealed to him more than the "chicken"—the kind you eat, not the kind you feed—for he had his picture taken with a Pekin prize winner.

"This provision of the rehabilitation act means that those who have delayed making application for any reason whatsoever must make this application prior to December 16th or lose the opportunity of receiving this government aid," he said.

Southern Part Of State Faces Coal Shortage

Sharp Famine Threatens, is View of Committee Secretary

The entire southern part of Wisconsin is facing a severe shortage of hard coal this winter due largely to the fact that dealers of that section looked to local coal company salesmen to fill their orders, P. H. Pressentin, secretary of the state coal committee said in a statement today. He declared that salesmen and coal brokers were now falling down on supplies to the sections needing anthracite.

"This year the agents of the anthracite operators are turning a deaf ear to their former clients, and the brokers are not getting any hard coal," the statement said. "This leaves the dealer out in the state, who has always looked to these sources for his coal, up against a stone wall, unless by chance he is fortunate enough to land a car of premium coal.

"The Lake Michigan dock companies have their hands more than full in attempting to distribute the coal they are receiving, on an equitable basis. They are in no position to take on business now. The majority of priorities placed with the different dock companies have been promptly honored. The day is coming soon, however, when it will be necessary to look to them to relieve the shortage at points, such as indicated, but I feel that they will meet the issue and see that no real hardship orsuffering occurs.

"During the war, Wisconsin's retailers were restricted to obtaining anthracite from the docks. But provision had been previously made to supply those dealers who normally dealt with all rail shippers from the coal from the docks, the amount being sent by cargo to the docks. But no such situation exists this year. Not only have the docks not been sent an amount to cover all rail needs, but they are short of the amount needed to supply their own trade.

"The sooner coal dealers in Wisconsin learn to look to the Lake Michigan dock companies for their supply of anthracite and ignore the salesmen who flock around when the sun is shining, the better off they will be as well as the communities they serve.

"After two experiences such as those of 1918-1919 and this year it should not be necessary for the dealers in Wisconsin to learn that for anthracite they must depend on the docks."

Trip Finished For Engineers At University

Two Divisions of Seniors Visit Many Industrial Plants

One hundred senior electrical and mechanical engineers returned from the eastern and western inspection trips of large manufacturing plants Sunday. Both tours included the Chicago game and those who took the eastern tour also saw the Michigan game.

Leaving Friday, Nov. 17, the engineers who took the eastern trip went directly to Detroit, where they visited the Ford Motor Car company Saturday morning. Their itinerary included Queenston plant of the Hydro-electric commission of Ontario, plants 1, 2, and 3 of the Niagara Power company, American Carborundum company at Niagara Falls; Pierce Arrow company, steam generating plant of the General Electric company, Lackawanna plant of the Lackawanna Steel corporation, at Buffalo.

The engineers also visited the Colfax steam generating plant of the Duquesne Light company, (most efficient and largest steam generating plant in the world), Springdale coal mines, East Pittsburg works of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, National Tube company, at Pittsburg; and the General Electric Lamp plant, at Cleveland. Traveling in a special coach, the group arrived in Chicago Saturday morning.

Seventy senior engineers were included in the western trip. The itinerary of this group took in Allis Chalmers company, Westinghouse Lamp plant, Lakeside light and power plant, Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light power plant, at Milwaukee; Nash Motor Car company, American Brass company, at Kenosha; Steel Wire plant, at Waukegan; Universal Cement company, at Buffington; Illinois Steel corporation, at Gary; Western Electric Telephone plant, Commonwealth Edison Steam Turbine Generating plant, at Chicago. A banquet was given them by the Westinghouse company Friday evening.

The idea of making inspection trips was abandoned during the war and this is the first time that a trip has been carried through since 1917.

Prof. Rood and B. Spieth, of the engineering faculty, accompanied the men on the eastern trip, and Profs. Price, Hyland, Larson, and Mr. Meyers took the western tour. The trips were of educational nature, planned expressly for the purpose of getting information of power plants and modern manufacturing developments.

Present Pastor and Wife Beautiful Lamp

"The eight years that I have spent in Madison have been the most profitable ones in my life," said Rev. Henry Harris in a short farewell address before the members of his congregation, at a social gathering in his honor at the Pilgrim Congregational church, Monday evening.

"My work in both churches here has been delightful. I think the best friendships of my life were acquired in the city and Mrs. Harris and myself will always carry a pleasant memory of you with us."

He said that the greatest object of his work had been to reach the soul of man and woman.

"One may speak about the work in the gymnasium or similar undertakings" he averred, "but it is the soul that is essential. It is the soul of the young people that counts. They are our future leaders, and their lives being shaped now. I have always tried to help every individual to find his field of service."

A number of the ministers of the city attended. The members of the congregation presented Mr. and Mrs. Harris with a beautiful floor lamp as a token of their esteem.

Madison Hospitals on Surgeons' Approved List

Hospital service to the public in Wisconsin has shown a marked advance in the past year, according to the fourth annual report of the American College of Surgeons. This report is based on a survey which includes personal visits to each hospital of 50 beds or over in the United States and Canada. Included in the list of hospitals given a place on the "approved" list, are:

The Madison General hospital, St. Mary's hospital, of Madison. The Madison Methodist hospital has been inspected by the College of Surgeons and while not of sufficient size to come under the present standardization, it has been found otherwise fully eligible for placing on the "approved" list.

Where the Responsibility Lies

THE futility of the past policy that has been pursued in the treatment of the moonshine menace here is evident in the rearrest of Mrs. Wrend.

Last spring Mrs. Wrend was sentenced to six months in jail and given a fine of $1300 for violation of the liquor laws. Mrs. Wrend was given considerable latitude to come and go while at the county jail and she was given full liberty at the end of five months.

Now Mrs. Wrend is again in the toils of the law for violation of the law against moonshine.

Mrs. Wrend was permitted to leave the jail because it was said that she was needed to attend to her home and children. If the charges that are made by the police department against Mrs. Wrend are true, the question may arise as to whether or not Mrs. Wrend's children would not be better off away from such surroundings.

The moonshine menace here cannot be eliminated with putty. It will take a good two fisted policy on the part of our local judges and the authorities to wipe out the evil here. The poison brigade cannot be run out of town by fines and paroles. The Capital Times still believes that some stiff jail sentences are needed.

Responsibility for local conditions rests squarely on the shoulders of Judge A. C. Hoppmann, Judge O. A. Stolen, Chief of Police Shaughnessy, District Attorney Theodore Lewis and W. Stanley Smith, state prohibition commissioner.

Must Redeem Promises

THAT the coming session of the legislature must redeem the promises made to the people during the campaign is the statement made by Senator Robert M. La Follette in a signed editorial in La Follette's Magazine for November. The editorial follows:

THE Progressive Republicans of Wisconsin have a record of carrying out their platform pledges to the people. In the coming legislature they will be expected to enact into law those principles for which they stood in the primaries and the election. They must record anew that platform pledges are not merely promises to secure office but contracts of honor to be performed to the letter in good faith. The usual lobby will be on hand to seduce members of the legislature to renig on their pledges to the people. To seek to induce a legislator to betray his trust is to offer him a gross insult to his honor. Any such attempt should be promptly resented.

The big fight is apt to be on the questions of taxation. Here the pledges of the legislators are specific and there must be no shirking of duty. That large corporations should have been found guilty of dodging their taxes to the tune of millions of dollars, is a scandal that cannot be longer tolerated. Income rates based on conditions prevailing in 1911 are no longer just or equitable. A new and fairer adjustment of income taxes is of first importance.

While the problems of taxation will demand first consideration, each plank of the platform pertaining to state affairs should be promptly and carefully considered. The Governor may be expected to cover these subjects in some detail in his message, and that will give the basis for the introduction of bills to meet the demands of the people expressed in the elections.

If the legislature shall tackle these problems seriously and earnestly from the start, there is no reason why an early adjustment may not be had. With the very meager salaries of members and the high cost of living at Madison, this is a consummation to be desired.

The great majority given the Governor is a token of appreciation of the people that entitles him to leadership in bringing about constructive legislation. No doubt he will have the confidence of the legislature as he has of the people. Governor Blaine has an eye single to state service, and much may be expected from him in this regard.

We congratulate Wisconsin on its opportunity for further advancement of its proud position as a well governed progressive state.

Fear Coeducation

Japan Looks With Fear on Enlightenment For Women; Work in Democracy

Co-education in Japan with the moral standards now prevailing is looked upon with fear, according to Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley college, speaking recently in the interest of seven colleges for women in the orient, three in China, one in Japan and three in India.

ELLEN PENDLETON

"There is a small but strong group in Japan that are working for democracy and who look with favor upon the education of women," said President Pendleton. "The government itself makes no provision for the higher education of women and therefore it is necessary for the women of America to help. The same is true of China.

"America has a comradeship and chivalry among men and women unknown in the orient that makes possible the education of our women. The nations of the far east can never take their places among the great powers of the world unless their women are given a fair chance."

"U. S. MUST HELP STOP MASSACRES IN ARMENIA," SAYS BISHOP MANNING

America must fulfill its duty to the Armenians by doing its part to stop the massacres, in the opinion of Bishop William T. Manning of the New York Episcopal diocese. It is not enough to send food and clothing to the orphans, he asserts.

"We do not want a recurrence of war anywhere," the bishop said recently, "but this does not free us from the responsibility of taking our stand for the protection of the helpless from brutal outrage and wrong. If firm action is not taken the situation in the near east may seriously threaten the peace of the world. It is time for the brutalities and inhumanities of the Turk to be brought to an end. It is our duty to urge with our whole strength that the pledges made to Armenia during the war shall be fulfilled. It is our duty to take our full part in conference with the other nations upon this matter. It is our duty to declare that religious minorities in the near east—Armenians, Greeks and others—must be protected and that the Armenian people must be given a place where they can live in safety and can have their own national existence.

"It is by bold witness in this matter that we shall best serve the cause of peace and that we shall be true to the ideals for which our sons gave themselves in the great war."

Two negroes, meeting one day on the principal colored residential street of Lynchburg, had paused for a friendly chat, when they observed on the opposite side of the street a flamboyantly buxom negro woman, who was striding along with an air of proud superiority, obviously conscious of the attention which her physical charms were attracting.

"Jim, who is dat pouter pigeon whoman yonder carryin' herself sa pertubrant?" asked Sam.

"Why, dat's Miss Mandy Johnson, down here from Roanoke on a visit to Reverent Morris," replied Jim.

"Oh," said Sam, "she sho' do present herself she?"—Elks Magazine.

On the Side

GOOD NEWS.

The business man should now rejoice
Throughout our much-taxed land.
He should be saving money now,
As he has hoped and planned.

Because glad times have come again
And lower are the prices,
Think of the coin that he will save
With the tax off sodas and ices!

A THANKSGIVING GREETING

The following Thanksgiving greeting has reached our desk. It is sent by the Bald-Headed Club of America, an organization formed three or four years ago and now with a flourishing membership.

The greeting is a lengthy document and reads in part as follows:

"Twenty years ago eggs were 10 cents a dozen, milk 5 cents a quart, the butcher gave away liver, the hired girl got $3 a week and did the washing and ironing, women did not powder and paint in public, play 'put and take,' shimmy or talk flapper gibberish; men then wore whiskers and boots, chewed tobacco, cussed, had their glass of beer, worked ten hours a day and never went on strike; no tips were given to waiters, there was no income tax and the hat check graft was unknown.

"Now everybody rides in automobiles or Fords, strains his neck looking at airplanes, plays the piano with his feet, goes to the movies to see a lot of sentimental slush, listens to grand opera on a radio machine, discards his sensible woolen underwear, smokes cigarettes, drinks hair tonic, cologne and embalming fluid, seldom goes to bed the same day he gets up, sets his children a bad example, then blames them for going wrong and thinks he is having a heck of a time.

"If you think you have anything to be thankful for, we send you greetings."

Looks as though the Hall mystery is about to depart to that bourne from which no traveler returneth, to keep company with the Elwell, Taylor and Charlie Ross mysteries. No new eye-witness today.

We are going to have a regular Thanksgiving this year. Four hundred thousand ukuleles have been burned in a Honolulu fire.

"When you dance, forget your feet," says a dancing teacher. This advice is being generally followed, and feet, in many cases, are not being used at all.

Well, well, well! Here we are again!

The poor boob Americans are getting theirs right off the griddle once more. But not so hard this time. "Americans lack in polish, but they more than make it up in vim," says Madame Georgette Le Blanc-Maeterlinck in an interview. "They are crude, perhaps, but does that matter? Perhaps it even helps."

We thank you, Georgette, for them kind words. You who have been enjoying our hospitality for some time, should know. We are glad to hear that you are going to settle down in our country for good, and in our crude and unpolished way, we welcome you.

You know, Georgette, it is great to be crude, like we are. And the wonder of it that we learned most of it from Europe.

GEORGE AND HIS SMILE IN NEW FILM

WILL PLAY CRAWLEY ROLE IN "VANITY FAIR"

GEORGE WALSH, known by screen patrons for his athletic prowess and his smile, which latter he is exhibiting in these columns, has been engaged by Hugo Ballin for the part of Rawdon Crawley in "Vanity Fair." This means that George will have to do some real acting, for the heroes of "Vanity Fair" days were not strong for athletics. Card playing and courting were a bit more in their line. Of course a smile was quite in keeping.

George Walsh

After playing his first screen role, a small character part in Griffith's "Intolerance," Walsh came quickly to the fore as a stunt actor and athlete. For the past several years, all of his pictures have offered him opportunities to show his splendid physique as a college youth, a fighter, a big brave hero and the like. He has rarely been afforded a chance to try his hand at the subtleties of the more delicate dramatic character.

This new role, however, will show him to his friends in a new light. Although George insists that he will return to his former type of part at the completion of "Vanity Fair," many who have seen him work in his new role say that his splendid showing will make it difficult for him to break away from further efforts of a similiar sort.

MARION'S NEXT

Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star, will work in December on her next picture, "Little Old New York," which will be adapted to the screen by Luther Reed from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young. Sidney Olcott will direct. Robert G. Vignola, who directed Miss Davies in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," has left on a trip around the world.

WALLACE REID BETTER

Wallace Reid will return from his mountain vacation the latter part of this month to start work upon his next Paramount picture, "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime," the Saturday Evening Post story by Dana Burnett. Albert Shelby Le Vino and Ralph Block, production advisory editors, are now working over the preliminaries of the story.

Word from the Reid camp in the mountains is that the Paramount star has completely recovered from the slight eye ailment which sent him off on the present vacation. He is now again in splendid shape and writes that he is looking forward to starting work in the thrilling as well as laughable scenes of the story, which shifts rapidly between New York and one of the small Latin-American countries famous for their comic opera revolutions.

FRANKEY KELCEY IN VAUDEVILLE OFFERING

The Orpheum bill this half has Frankey Kelcey as the chief fun maker in the miniature musical comedy, "The Brazilian Heiress." Singing and dancing specialties are interspersed throughout the act, beautiful costumes, and a chorus of six pretty girls who can sing and dance makes "The Brazilian Heiress" an entertaining offering. One of vaudeville's supervocalists, is at the Orpheum in the person of Bob Murphy. Not only singing his numbers to the best of his ability, but also illustrating them with man clever bits of stage craft. "One The Course" is a clever musical Oddity by Harvey, Henney and Grace. The offering of this talented trio of musicians is one that cannot fail to please. A ball game in the dark is staged by Cocke, Mortimer and Harvey, who by the aid of special apparatus and their "Radium Ball" play half of the game in the dark and the other half in the light. "Song Impressions by Dean Moore and Kathryn Arnold brings a variety of winsome little girl characters to the local stage. Comicalities in the air and a seemingly never ending series of whirls, which he gives to his body while clutching a rope high above the stage in one hand, is the bland offered by Dave Winnie.

* * *

Dave Ferguson and Company in "The Rounder of Old Broadway" will be one of the foremost attractions on the week end bill starting with the Thanksgiving Day matinee Thursday. Special moving pictures of the Chicago-Illinois football game played at Chicago, will be shown the last half.

"NERO" IS FILMED OVERSEAS

When an American producer engages an international cast to produce a film version of one of the most dramatic stories of history, and sends the entire staff overseas in order that the scene may be original and authentic, it is not surprising that the result is a great photo play.

"Nero," now being presented at the Grand theater, is all that is to be expected from so great an undertaking. Scenes of the burning of Rome are carried out with amazing realism. Thousands of men have been used in the production, and European dramatic talent has combined effectively with American technical skill. Naturally the acting is of the first class, and the photography is excellent.

The theme is the story of the early Christians in Rome and their persecutions by the Roman ruling class.

"QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER" IS COMING

Larry Semon and Ethel Clayton are now being featured at the Parkway. Larry is seen in his latest comedy "The Agent," a riot of fun from start to finish. Ethel Clayton is seen in a dashing romantic drama "If I Were Queen," one of her biggest and best pictures to date. An added attraction is David Pesetzki, celebrated Russian pianist who presents a musical comedy called "The Music Mirror." It is a real treat for music lovers.

Starting Thursday Thanksgiving Day the Parkway will present Reginald Denny in "Young King Cole," the first round of the New Leather Pushers and Bert Lytell in a comedy detective story "Sherlock Brown." Mr. Pesetzki will also be on the program. Next Sunday is the start of the Parkway's first anniversary week. Through special arrangements with the studios, the world premiere showing of "Quincy Adams Sawyer," one of the biggest pictures to come out shortly, has been secured as the anniversary attraction. The picture boasts of a cast of fifteen actual stars.

WHERE "DR. JACK" ORIGINATED

Some people will wonder where Harold Lloyd found the "model" for his characterization in "Dr. Jack," his newest feature comedy, which will be distributed by Pathe Exchange, Inc. The medical profession is full of "Dr. Jacks," or "Dr. Jack," to be more correct.

While Lloyd was making his new comedy, he had visits from many well known physicians, who gave his valuable advice in the development of his story. One was Dr. Peck an eminene eye, nose and throat specialist of Chicago.

When Dr. Peck had the story of "Dr. Jack" outlined to him by Lloyd, he laughed heartily, for it brought to his mind "Dr. Sunshine," as one of Chicago's foremost specialists in children's diseases is known.

"Dr. Sunshine" effects his cures just as Lloyd does in "Dr. Jack." Sunshine, a little candy, and wonders are worked by this noted Chicago physician, in his own peculiar way. In his medicine case—or what should be his medicine case,—he carries jars of jelly, lollypops, and most everything else but medicine.

"Europe Lunatic"

Dr. Hendrick Van Lorn Says European Civilization is Going to Pieces

Bolshevism is completely dead; Europe is like a lunatic asylum; history is falling to pieces; France is not so wicked—she is just damnably scared; England is the only ray of light across the water.

These were some of the statements made by Dr. Hendrik Van Loon, author of "The Story of Mankind," and other popular historical works.

Dr. Van Loon has just returned from a three months' continental tour, and his observations cause him to believe that "European civilization is rapidly going to pieces."

It's the historians who should be shot, not the monarchs, he said. He blamed his brethren for their insistence upon what they term "the correct scientific attitude," for their "overemphasis on nationalism," which in Dr. Van Loon's opinion, is the root of the evil.

"If I had written my 'Story of Mankind' three years ago I would have been lynched," he declared. "If I had written it two years ago the American Legion would have called me unpatriotic. Some people melt very easily; others, being made of finer metal, take a longer time."

AS COUE MIGHT SAY

Thursday morning we had griddle cakes; Friday evening we had corn fritters; Saturday morning he had waffles. Every day in every way we are getting batter and batter.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

THE STORM.

Winter's hammering at the door, banging at the window pane
Seeking to get in at us, but it howls and beats in vain;
Here the logs upon the hearth blaze and chuckle gleefully,
It's a stormy night outside, but we're safe as safe can be.

Out of doors the tree tops moan and a dirge the wires sing,
Now and then a shutter bangs like a bruised and beaten thing,
But indoors the children play all unmindful of the storm,
Here we have no care to dread, here are happy hearts and warm.

So before the fire I sit, thinking as the storm goes by
Filled with bitterness the world, but contented here am I;
Now the North wind howls along, and the snow is drifting deep,
But serene the house remains by the blazing fire I keep.

So our faith is like the fire glowing brightly in the grate,
Keeping warm the heart inside when descend the storms of fate,
Bitterly the winds may blow, 'round the place where we abide,
But our faith shall keep us safe till the tempest shall subside.
